Defense Given First Call On Resources

EXPECT PINCH SOON, WARNING TO CONSUMERS

New Priorities Board Retains All Available Machines, Men For Essentials.

'FRILLS MUST GO'

President Declares Still More Money To Be Spent In War Program.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — The administration gave defense absolutely first call on all the nation's industrial resources today, and consumers were told they could expect to feel the pinch soon.

Keynoting a fresh drive for a manifold increase in arms production, the new supply priorities and allocation board stated:

"Every available man and machine must be employed either on direct defense requirements or at work essential to the civilian economy. . . .

". . . defense comes first."

For most citizens, the pinch will come with the discontinuance of non-essential wares—the frills and the extras of every-day American life.

For a part of the population—manufacturers of non-essential good and their employes—this may entail added hardship—either temporary suspension of production until the plants are tooled for defense orders, or a complete shut-down in case a change-over cannot be effected.

The future course of the defense effort—and its impact on the consumer—was made clear yesterday by twin announcements—one by President Roosevelt and to his press conference, and one by the supply priorities and allocations board he set up last week.

This super-board held its first meeting, with Vice President Wallace presiding, and took up its task of accelerating the output of military supplies.

Mr. Roosevelt announced that

FLIGHT SET

Russian Planes Set To Leave Alaska For U. S. Today.

KODIAK, Alaska —(U.P.)— Two Russian flying boats, carrying 47 Russian technicians and Anthony Fedetov, secretary of the Russian embassy in Washington, are expected to leave today, possibly for Seattle.

The technicians arrived at Nome on Sunday and Fedetov flew here Monday night to confer with them. They flew from Nome to Kodiak yesterday, but their ultimate destination was not announced.

The war department in Washington revealed yesterday that the technicians had come to observe the manufacture of American airplanes. They will not engage in flight training.

Defense Job Caravan to Stop In City

District Manufacturers to Get Ideas on How to Obtain Contracts.

Representatives of the national defense contract service together with large manufacturers will come to Mansfield Tuesday, Sept. 16, for one of the seven state-wide conferences designed by the Defense Contract Service to speed up national defense production by farming out contracts to smaller manufacturers.

"The purpose of this trip," according to Herman H. Lind, deputy regional coordinator for the Office of Production Management, "is to bring about a better understanding of what the defense program requires in the way of production. It is intended to get the prime contractors and the small manufacturers, desirous of securing sub contracts, personally acquainted, looking forward to constantly expanding defense production."

At lease 200 manufacturers from six surrounding Ohio counties will be in Mansfield for the meeting to be held at the Mansfield-Leland hotel when DCS representatives will display samples of parts they wish to let out for subcontractor.

John G. Routzon, Chamber of Commerce secretary, who aided in setting up the Mansfield area at a recent meeting of the Ohio Commercial Secretaries, said that rep-

CALLS REVENUE BILL 'VICIOUS'

Sen. La Follette Dubs Measure Assault on Plain Taxpayer, Demands Rejection.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — Terming the new revenue bill "a vicious assault on the rank-and-file taxpayer," Senator LaFollette (Prog-Wis) called on the senate today to reject it and then work out legislation "based upon the sound principle of ability to pay."

LaFollette criticized the bill in a minority finance committee report coincident with issuance of a majority report which estimated that the bill would yield $3,679,800,000 annually, or $463,000,000 more than similar legislation approved by the house. The senate arranged to start debate on the bill today.

Senator Clark (D-Mo), a member of the finance group, and other members also expressed disfavor, Clark calling the measure "a hodge-podge hit-or-miss piece of legislation."

Both Clark and LaFollette spoke harshly of a committee amendment lowering income tax

Worried Japanese Build Dummy City As Air Protection

SHANGHAI — (INS) — Indicating the extent of Japanese concern over extended hostilities, American evacuees arriving in Shanghai revealed today that the entire industrial city of Osaka has been camouflaged and replaced by a "dummy" to protect it from air attacks.

Some distance from the city itself, a fake metropolis has been created, with lighted smudge-pots laid out to simulate Osaka's busy blast furnaces and vital industrial plants.

As Betty and Billy Start to School

Mansfield's public schools opened today to 5,931 children, but few were as thrilled over the prospect of "school days" as was six-year-old Betty Weir, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. D. A. Weir, 143 Parkwood boulevard, who is shown at the top left. Betty was so excited over the prospect of the first day of her very first year in school that she took her books to bed with her last night. Betty, all smiles, was up bright and early this morning all ready for her first assignment. She is shown leaving for Western Avenue school at top right. Billy Van Dewater, shown in bottom photo, is well equipped for either note-taking or tricycle racing as he waves goodbye to his parents. Billy, 4, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Van Dewater, 56 Glenwood boulevard, started to kindergarten today.

Mayor, Councilmen Have Brief Session of 'Postoffice' Game

Members of city council and Mayor William J. Locke played a variation of the old game "postoffice" for more than 20 minutes last night but no one got kissed.

It all came up when an ordinance was introduced for the appropriation of $500 for postage stamps and "incidentals" for use in municipal court. Council delayed action on the measure, until an explantion is made on what the money is to be used for.

Councilman George C. Kyle, however, after a whispered conference with Mayor Locke then called for a suspension of the rules and the immediate passage of the ordinance as an emergency.

The ordinance asked the appropriation of $250 for postage and $250 for "incidentals and surety bond." Councilmen could not interpret the "incidentals and surety bond" clause even after Kyle and Locke tried to explain it.

Kyle and Locke both later admitted they did not know what the incidental clause meant but assured council the postage was necessary so the court could mail out the checks going to several merchants as their share of the distribution of trusteeships.

The mayor pointed out that a large amount of money was distributed by the court monthly and that it was four months behind in distribution work. The appropriation was to supplement others of $600 for stationery and printing and another for $300 made at the beginning of the year.

Kyle's motion for emergency passage was voted down. The ordinance was given a second reading, however, and will be up for final passage next month. Meanwhile, council will investigate the $250 worth of "incidentals and surety bond."

GO ON TRIAL

19 Face Court Today on Espionage Charge.

NEW YORK — Nineteen members of a recently rounded up German espionage ring go on trial today in Brooklyn before Federal Judge Mortimer W. Byers. Fourteen others who have admitted their guilt await sentencing.

U. S. Attorney Harold M. Kennedy, was ready to present the people's case—which he said would unfold ramifications almost beyond belief. Much information has been gleaned from members of the ring who have pleaded guilty.

The government charges that the ring transmitted information about ship movements, developments in United States naval, army and aircraft products, and transmitted, by means of courier, samples of the latest armaments.

PLANE CRASHES KILLING THREE Children Wrapped In Flames as Craft Hits Street; Pilot Escapes.

(Picture on Page 5.)

(By Associated Press)

HEMPSTEAD, N. Y. Enveloped in a sheet of burning gasoline, three children suffered fatal burns yesterday as a U. S. army P-39 pursuit plane crashed in flames in a busy street of this Long Island community.

The pilot, Second Lieut. Roy W. Scott of Mitchel field, stuck with his disabled plane until the last moment, attempting to get it back to the landing field, but was forced to bail out after it had dropped to an elevation of 700 feet. Landing in a tree, he was virtually uninjured.

Two of the children, Casper Cuccio, 5, and Georgene Kramer, 4, died several hours after the mid-afternoon accident, while the third Pauline Cuccio, 7, died late last night.

Dr and Mrs. Arthur I. Kramer, and Peter Cuccio, parents of the children, suffered minor burns as they tried to rip burning clothes from the screaming tots.

As the plane's gasoline tank exploded, a sheet of flame shot across the street, enveloping the children and searing the front of nearby buildings.

From the tree where his parachute had caught, some 300 feet from the crash, Pilot Scott, unable to help, watched with horror as the children fell victim to the flames.

Mansfielder In Royal Canadian Air Corps Will Leave for Britain Soon

He Put Aside Plans for Stage Career to Join Flying Fighters.

By ESTHER SMITH

Mansfield's only member of the Royal Canadian Air Force is headed for Britain with an all-American squadron although he doesn't know just when the take-off will be made.

"It may be 10 weeks or it may be longer," said Sergeant Pilot Raymond Foltz, 25, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. N. Foltz, 33 Gibson avenue, before leaving for a quick trip to New York and back before rejoining his squadron in Canada after a 15-day furlough.

Ten weeks or more of training on bomber and fighter planes at a Canadian training field are required before the squadron leaves for England and all movements are subjected to military secrecy, Foltz explained.

The young airman, one of 29 Americans to receive their wings last week, said, "It's all a part of the day's work," when asked how he felt about duty overseas.

CITY'S SCHOOL DOORS OPEN TO 5,931 PUPILS

First Day's Enrollment 123 Under Last Year's Figure, Superintendent Says.

CLASSES END AT NOON

First School Work Starts Tomorrow; Pupils Given Schedules Today.

Through the portals of Mansfield's public schools poured some 5,931 pupils today—and the 1941-1942 school year was underway.

It was a dull and rather gloomy morning—but even a light rain failed to dampen the spirits of the children who swarmed through corridors, renewing old acquaintances and making new ones; made last-minute schedule changes; and generally enjoyed themselves as classes began in Mansfield schools today.

Superintendent of Schools W. L. Miller said that everything was running smoothly and that apparently no overcrowding in classrooms had been reported.

Glenn G. Rohleder, starting his first school year as principal at Senior High—he was transferred during the summer from Johnny Appleseed and succeeds Jesse Beer—said that with the exception of a few last-minute schedule changes, everything was running smoothly and that pupils were settling down "as though they'd never been away."

Opening day's enrollment in all of the city's schools was 123 under last year's starting figure, when 6,054 attended classes on the first day.

However, this year's figure is expected to reach around 6,200 by next week as "stragglers" return to school. Permanent enrollment figures are always higher than those for the first day, Supt. Miller said.

Classes were to be dismissed at noon today, but tomorrow pupils will put in a full day of classes.

Cafeterias at Senior high and the two Junior high buildings will open tomorrow for the first time, it was anounced.

Today's enrollment at Senior high was set at 1,258. At John Simpson, it was 880 and at Johnny Appleseed it was 664.

All three were down slightly

World Series to Open at Yankee Stadium Oct. 1

NEW YORK—(UP) The world series will open at Yankee stadium on Wednesday, Oct. 1, it was announced today after a meeting of K. M. Landis, high commissioner of baseball, with representatives of the interested clubs.

The Yankees have not yet clinched the American league pennant, but they are so close to it that no representatives of other clubs in the league attended the meeting.

Brooklyn, St. Louis and Cincinnati all had representatives present.

The first two games will be played in Yankee stadium. In event Brooklyn wins the National league pennant, the third, fourth and fifth games will be played at Ebbetts Field on Oct. 3, 4, 5.

The teams then will move back to Yankee stadium—unless the series already has been decided—for the sixth game on Oct. 6. Then there will be a one-day interval to allow for sale of tickets for the seventh and final game which will be played at the stadium on Wednesday, Oct. 8.

Roll Back Nazi Thrusts Toward Two Key Cities

Soviets Claim 22 Villages Re-Taken In Moscow Sector; Assert Germans Repulsed Three Miles From Leningrad; Air War Grows.

(By Associated Press)

Twin Russian counter-offensives were reported today to have rolled back the German thrusts toward Moscow and Leningrad.

In this claimed resurgence of Red army power the Russians said they had retaken 22 villages in a 10-day, 30-mile counter thrust on the center of the main front before Moscow, destroyed an entire division of the elite Schutzstaffel (Blackshirt Hitler infantry), and driven the Germans back three miles from Leningrad, at the northern end of the main front.

Leningrad had been under the direst threat. The Germans claimed yesterday to have driven to within 20 miles of this second largest city of the Soviet Union. The proximity of the threat to Moscow has never been clarified but the Germans were known once to have passed beyond Smolensk, to the Vyaznia area about 125 miles southwest of the capital.

A strategically important town, otherwise unidentified, was said to have fallen to the counter-attack of Leningrad's newly-inspired defenders.

While the Leningrad forces were executing their stroke under the personal command of Marshal Klementi Voroshilov, troops on the center were wresting an important height from the black-shirted Nazis, according to the combined accounts of the Red Star, the army newspaper, and Pravda, organ of the Communist party.

The center counter-offensive was said to have been pointed by Russia's own panzer forces which were credited with slicing through a German salient at its base.

The Leningrad counter-blow may have shattered German attempts to close a ring of steel around the city at Krasnogvardeisk—a junction of rail lines from Leningrad, Moscow, Tallinn and Pskov—which lies 20 miles southwest of Leningrad and which German reports said advance Nazi units reached yesterday.

Voroshilov's arrival among the hard-pressed defenders of Leningrad, Red Star said, "inspired Soviet troops for new heroic deeds and they took oath to fulfill his orders regardless of difficulties."

Reflecting perhaps new difficulties encountered by the Germans on the big eastern front, the Hitler communique today was barren of detail on operations, saying merely that "successful fighting actions are in progress" along its whole length.

Meanwhile, Russia and Germany both stepped up their aerial offensives.

Claiming an edge in the aerial fighting along the eastern front, the Russians said they had shot down 198 German planes Saturday, Sunday and Monday, with a loss of less than a third of that number from their own air force.

The Moscow communique today said that a large formation of German bombers was repulsed in a raid on a heavy-fortified sector and then pursued to its own base by Russian planes and bombed when it landed.

"Our air force continued to deal blows on motorized and mechanized forces of the enemy and his infantry and artillery, and attacked his aircraft on their airdromes," the Russian communique said.

If the Luftwaffe and German land and air forces fail to break a threatening deadlock on the eastern front, regions hitherto untouched by the war may be opened up to battle. Turkey would be a likely prospect as a new battlefield.

This possibility was emphasized today when authorized German sources admitted indirectly the existence of German troop concentrations on Bulgaria's frontier with Turkey.

"It is perfectly understandable that a certain counter-measure is now to be taken to the Russian closing of the Turkish-Iranian border," they said.

Iran now is being occupied by Russian and British troops.

Franz von Papen, German ambassador to Turkey, left for home yesterday, but Berlin sources in-

OFFENSIVE: Berlin Hit By Bombs In All-Day RAF Attack

(By Associated Press)

LONDON—Wave after wave of British bombers shuttled across the English channel last night and early today to continue a round-the-clock offensive by blasting at Berlin, southwestern Germany and Nazi-occupied France.

The two objectives of the RAF's during the night were Berlin and Frankfurt.

At Frankfurt, British reports said, a heavy attack was made on railway communications and industrial targets.

Large fires were left burning in Berlin and bombs were seen to burst on industrial buildings, returning pilots reported.

The British also attacked other towns in western Germany, including Mannheim, and the German-occupied channel ports of Ostend and Dunkerque, the air ministry announced.

Nine British planes were lost during the night operations, the ministry said.

The first wave of RAF night raiders droned eastward a short time after darkness had descended on Dover Strait, and violent anti-aircraft fire lighting the sky over Boulogne and Calais indicated that the French coast—

CRISIS: Konoye Says Japs On Gravest Spot In History

(By Associated Press)

TOKYO—Premier Prince Fumimaro Konoye told government and war industries representatives today that Japan was facing the gravest crisis in her history, Domei said, and that total mobilization was necessary to overcome the emergency.

It was Konoye's first public statement since July 30 and came as the proposed movement of United States war supplies to Soviet Russia through Japanese waters was a subject of discussion in Tokyo, Washington and Moscow.

The premier spoke before a round table conference of government executives and leaders of Japanese business concerns, one of a series of meetings instituted by the national service association to develop Japan's economic power.

Leaders of Tohokai, extreme nationalist political group headed by Seigo Nakano, threw their support to proposals for establishment of an ocean safety zone around Japan, a plan which Konoye was said yesterday to have under consideration.

Britain, now sharing with Russia in military control of Iran, was insisting that "the menace represented by the large and potentially dangerous German community in Iran be effectively and fully eliminated in the shortest possible time," London authorities declared.

Instructions to this effect have been sent to British diplomats collaborating with the Russians in negotiating an armistice with the Iranians at Teheran. An agreement in principle already has been reached, it was said.

In the Mediterranean theater, British submarines at war on Axis shipping lines, were reported to have sunk two large schooners off the African coast, damaged a large merchant vessel northwest of Sicily and attacked shipping in the harbor of Bengasi, Libya.

The Italian high command announced that its forces had successfully attacked British lines in Ethiopia while its planes bombed and machine-gunned a British column near the Giarabug oasis in Libya. RAF attacks on Bengasi and several places on Sicily were acknowledged.

Wavell Declares Germans Weakening

SIMLA—(INS)—Germany is definitely weakening, General Sir Archibald P. Wavell, commander-in-chief of British troops in India said in a war anniversary broadcast today.

"There are many signs the enemy is growing weaker," Wavell said.

"From arrogant confidence he has passed into restless anxiety which will turn to despair as he sees ruin approach him."

Japan's southward moves, Wavell warned, are being carefully watched.

"Indian soldiers in Malaya and Burma are ready to defend India's eastern bastions," he said.

Nazis Won't Feed Conquered Peoples

BERLIN—(INS)—Germany today rejected all responsibility for feeding the populations of Nazi-occupied countries and called upon the United States and Great Britain to do so.

Under international law, a Wilhelmstrasse spokesman informed the press, Germany's only duty in France, Holland, Belgium and other occupied territories, is to maintain order.

"England and a certain influential power across the Atlantic must accept the obligation and responsibility of getting the people fed," he added.

The populations of occupied countries, the spokesman continued, have the legal right to draw food supplies from the outside. Freedom of the seas, he said, under international law means that Russians, French, Belgians and other inhabitants of occupied countries have the right to import essential food supplies unhindered.

Reports Torpedo Plane Hits Luetzow

LONDON—(AP)—A British torpedo plane hit the 10,000-ton pocket battleship Luetzow a few weeks ago, Sir Archibald Sinclair, the air minister, told a national defense luncheon meeting today.

He gave no details of the engagement.

The Luetzow (formerly the Deutschland) is one of the three pocket battleships with which Germany entered the war.

Only she and the Admiral Scheer remain. The Admiral Graf Von Spee was scuttled Dec. 17, 1939, after she had been driven by three British cruisers into Montevideo, Uruguay, in a running battle of the South American coast.

Selective Service Director Says Local Boards to Aid Men.

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Chester W. Goble, state selective service director, estimated today about 7,600 Ohioans would be among the 200,000 soldiers mustered out of service by December.

Men released will be assigned to the regular army reserve until they are 45.

Once the soldier returns to civilian life, his local draft board will return him to his former employment or seek a new job for him if he was unemployed at the time of his induction. One member of each local board will supervise this work, Goble indicated.

Hear Konoye Asks Battleship Chat

WASHINGTON—(U.P.)—The capital buzzed today with discussion of an unconfirmed report that the Japanese premier, Prince Fumimaro Konoye, has asked President Roosevelt to discuss Japanese-United States relations with him aboard a Japanese battleship in the Pacific ocean.

White House and state department officials disclaimed any knowledge of such an invitation.

White House Secretary Stephen T. Early, when asked about the report late last night, conferred with the president by telephone. Then, in a conference telephone call to press association offices, he announced that the only presidential sea voyage contemplated in the near future is a week-end cruise "from Annapolis, down Chesapeake Bay and up the Potomac river to Washington." That was his only comment.

MANSFIELDER TO GO TO BRITAIN

He Put Aside Plans For A Stage Career In Order To Join RCAF.

"I was thrilled in the beginning but now it is a matter of routine," said Foltz who was born in Mansfield. He was graduated from Mansfield Senior high in 1933.

Quentin Reynolds, author and Collier's foreign correspondent set Foltz to thinking about the R. A. F. with his articles dealing with the flying corps published by the nationally-read magazine.

Then he heard Reynolds speak in a New York theater last December in connection with the picture, "London Can Take It." Later Foltz met Reynolds and talked with him. He then decided to go to Montreal and enlist.

"Reynolds is one of the finest men I know," Foltz said. "He does a lot for the R. A. F. boys in London."

Foltz is the only Ohio boy in the all-American squadron. Most of them are from the south.

Flying was not new to him for he had some lessons on Long Island before enlisting. He had lived in New York City four years and played minor roles with the Group theater while considering the stage as a profession. But the footlights paled when he started thinking about the R. A. F.

Before entering the Initial Training school, or the I. T. S. as Foltz referred to it, the squadron did nine weeks' guard duty in northern Ontario as a matter of discipline.

The school was held at the Hunt club in Toronto and later the squadron was shifted to Windsor for elementary flying. The past 12 weeks the squadron saw service flying at Camp Borden, Ontario.

"Training in the R. C. A. F. compares to that in the United States Air Corps," Foltz said. "The R. C. A. F. requires a high school education and it is difficult for a flier to get through the graduate school without college work." Foltz had one year at Ohio State university.

"We fly seven days a week," Foltz said. "We're up at 6 a. m. and take off at 7 a. m. and fly until eight at night. In the meantime we also go to ground school."

"If we do night flying we fly until 3 or 4 a. m.," said the Mansfield airman, adding that his greatest thrill in the R. C. A. F. so far occurred when he made his first solo flight at night.

Foltz said that the squadron flew both fighter and bomber type planes and that the fliers would not know to which type of plane they would be assigned until they reached England.

Of the 42 American boys who enlisted in the squadron at the time that Foltz did only 29 received their wings. This was a pretty high average, according to Foltz, as "usually only about half the class finish."

Commenting on the types of men in the R. C. A. F., Foltz grew enthusiastic about the Australians and New Zealanders. "They're the finest chaps one could meet anywhere," he said. "The Americans get along with them very well and perhaps understand them better than they do the English boys."

BRITISH PLANES BOMB BERLIN

which was hammered all day yesterday—was taking another pounding.

(Dispatches from Berlin said the German capital had experienced the liveliest air raid in months. An official announcement reported that while strong RAF units participated only a few planes got over the city itself, but acknowledged damage to residential sections. Three of the raiders were said to have been downed.)

The German air force was comparatively inactive during the night, the government said. A few Nazi planes flew over northeast England, doing some damage at one place, a communique declared, no casualties were reported, however.

Berlin Buildings Shaken During Raid

BERLIN—(U.P.)—Buildings shook and windows rattled during the night under the blasting of anti-aircraft guns firing at British planes raiding the capital area. Other British formations bombed areas in northern, central and southwestern Germany.

Motors of the big British craft could be heard over the city over the terrific din of the gunfire.

Searchlights flashed across the sky and at least one caught a British plane in its beams.

It was Berlin's second air raid alarm in three nights. But whereas on Sunday night, when Russian planes approached the capital area, there was no gunfire and the air raid alarm and the "all clear" alone marked the raid, this time, there was terrific fire.

The word, "concetrated," was used to describe the fire in the formal communique.

(It was strongly indicated that the raids on Germany might prove the greatest of the entire war, and that the raid on Berlin was a heavy one.

(Columbia broadcasting system reported last night that more German and German-controlled radio stations had gone off the air, in token of air raiding, than ever before. Even such stations as Budapest, Bucharest, Prague and Bratislava, Slovakia, went off the air.)

YOUTH MISSING

Sheriff Asked To Aid Search For Lexington Boy, 19.

Richland county authorities widened their search today for Sheldon Dillon, 19, of Lexington who disappeared July 18 after telling his parents he was going to Virginia to visit an uncle.

The youth was not reported missing until recently, his parents believing that he may have found a job and would write to them. Relatives in Virginia said he failed to reach there.

Sheriff Frank E. Robinson and his deputies discounted the idea that the youth may have enlisted in the army or navy since he was known to have defective vision.

Relatives of the youth were working with the sheriff's office today in the preparation of 200 cards bearing a description of the missing boy to be mailed to city and county authorities throughout the nation.

H. P. CHANDLER, ENGINEER AND INVENTOR AT OHIO BRASS, DIES

Homer P. Chandler, 63, development engineer at the Ohio Brass company and inventor of a number of mining and railway articles produced by the company, was dead today after a brief illness.

Mr. Chandler, who had been affiliated with the Ohio Brass company for 20 years, died at 7:30 p. m. yesterday at General hospital. He lived at 642 West Fourth street.

Coming to Mansfield from Pulaski, W. Va., in 1921, with wide experience in the mining field, he had an important part in the development of the Ohio Brass company's mining equipment department.

He held a large number of patents on inventions and recently received a patent on a portable drill.

Native of Columbus, Mr. Chandler first was employed by the Jeffrey Manufacturing company there. Later positions included those of electrician at the Reading Iron company, Stoyestown, Pa., and the Thacker Coal company at Thacker, W. Va.; superintendent of a cash register company in Columbus, factory superintendent for a Columbus automobile shop, and chief electrical engineer for the Nelsonville Paving Block company at Nelsonville, O.

HOMER P. CHANDLER

Immediately before coming to Mansfield, he was chief electrical and mechanical engineer of mines and furnaces for the Jeffrey Manufacturing company, Pulaski, W. Va.

He was a member of the Methodist church, Masonic bodies, and the American Mining Congress.

Surviving are the widow, Mrs. Lillian Yuncker Chandler; three sons, William B. and James of Los Angeles, and Charles of Columbus; four daughters, Mrs. Harold Metcalf, Bucyrus; Mrs. Earl Kopp, Wooster; Mrs. Dudley Miller, Ashland, and Mrs. Berhle Myers of Galion; three step-daughters, Misses Betty Jane and Anna Mae Yuncker of Mansfield and Mrs. Robert Dinkelaker of Louisville, Ky.; two brothers, James Chandler of Columbus and Bruce Chandler of Plain City, and 18 grandchildren.

The body is at the Finefrock funeral home where services will be held at 10:30 a. m. Saturday with Rev. E. G. Corwin, pastor of the First Methodist church, officiating. Burial will be in the Mansfield cemetery.

SCHOOL DOORS OPEN TO 5,931

First Day's Enrollment 123 Under Last Year's Figure, Superintendent Says.

from opening day figures a year ago. Then Senior high had 1,306, Simpson 904 and Appleseed 662.

Enrollment in the city's elementary schools stood at 3,129, according to figures from the superintendent's office.

They broke down as follows: Bowman, 871; Brinkerhoff, 235; Bushnell, 193; Carpenter, 245; Hedges, 416; Newman, 382; Prospect, 220; Western, 238; West Fifth, 195, and Woodland, 134.

City schools were among the last public schools in the county to open, although Country Day school, a small private institution, also opened today. St. Peter's began classes yesterday.

First in the county to start school was Bellville, which held primary classes on Monday, Labor Day.

Yesterday Shelby, Lexington, Mifflin township, Shiloh, Lucas, Butler and Madison townships, and Union Rural schools opened.

In some parts of the Mansfield area the boys and girls still have a week, and in some cases two weeks of vacation before school bells call them back to classes.

Sharon township and Springfield township schools at Ontario do not open until next Monday, while schools in the Plymouth district will remain closed until Sept. 15. By that time all 13,400 students expected back in Mansfield and Richland county will have started the fall term.

ODD GRATITUDE

Youth Helps Motorist, Then Gets Sock On The Nose.

COLUMBUS —(INS)— Gratitude is shown in many different forms, William Sedoruk, 19, was certain today. Sedoruk told police that he was driving along last night when he came upon a man whose car would not run. The 19-year-old youth pushed the stranger's car and in doing so, the bumper guards of th etwo autos locked. An argument followed during which, Sedoruk told police, the man "hit me on the nose."

William was treated at a hospital for a brain concussion and bruises and cuts about the face and head.

resentatives of small manufacturers would be here from Ashland, Knox, Morrow, Huron, Richland and a part of Crawford county.

Prime contractors expected to take part are Curtiss-Wright, Wright Aeronautical, Thompson Products, Electric Autolite, United Engineering and Foundry, Lima Locomotive Works, Westinghouse, General Electric, Bendix Aviation, Fisher Body, Cooper-Bessemer, Pullman Standard Car and Chase Brass and Copper.

Lind pointed out that while subcontractors can hardly expect to walk away from the one-day session with contracts, he hoped that the meeting would be instrumental in obtaining orders for small manufacturers who may be threatened with closing down because of national defense.

No "salesmen" are being invited to the meeting, Lind said, and speeches will also be out. Conference tables will be set up and the small business manufacturer will be able to discuss problems with production men and government specialists just as if they were in their offices.

Sixty Mansfield manufacturers will be represented at the conference, eight from Shelby, and one from both Plymouth and Lucas, Routzon said.

The defense caravan will start Tuesday, Sept. 15, in Columbus, and after stopping in Mansfield, Wednesday, will follow an itinerary that includes, Toledo, Sept. 17; Zanesville, Sept. 18; Canton, Sept. 19; Erie, Pa., Sept. 22; Youngstown, Sept. 23, and Cleveland, Sept. 24.

GALION SCHOOL BOARD HIRES 14 NEW TEACHERS

Approve Appointments Made By Superintendent Hill at Meeting Tuesday.

GALION—With the opening of the Galion city schools only five days away, the board of education at its monthly meeting, Tuesday night, approved teacher appointments.

Included in the teacher appointments that had been made by Supt. O. E. Hill, are: James Lymper of Versailles, O., who will teach social studies and be assistant coach. He was coach last year at Versailles. Evelyn Long of Demascus, O., who last year was assistant in McGill Medical library at Montreal, has been hired as librarian and science teacher. She was graduated from Ohio Wesleyan university and McGill university.

New science teacher in the junior high school will be A. L. Cattabiani of Powhaten Point, O. He is a Muskingum college graduate.

Another athletic assistant and junior high school science teacher whose appointment was approved is Robert Sheffer of Tippacanoe City. He is an Ohio State university graduate.

Because of increase in enrollment this year in the Galion school system, two additional teachers have been employed. There will be an extra first grade teacher at the East school, and a teacher for the special room at the junior high school.

When school starts Monday at 8:30 a. m., there will be 14 new teachers in the entire staff of 58.

Bills approved by the board for payment amounted to $7,000 which will take care of the year's supplies.

In charge of B. W. Myers, the bookstore will open in the basement of the senior high school, at 8 a. m., and close at 5:30 p. m., on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, in order that children may have their books for the first day of school.

Teacher assignments which have been made include:

East—Martha Albrecht, Bessie Hubley, Gladys Fox, Aliene Arndt, Margaret Rupert, Florence Willford, Jean Leavenworth and C. M. Stover. South—Mary Cornenwett, Mary Wagner, Bessie Swinehart and B. W. Myers. North—Mary Stokley, Helen Reynolds, Lura Dunning and E. R. Garverick. West—Miriam Martin, Aurelia Meuser, Katherine Quay, Mary Findley, Estelle Engelhart, Nellie Hardin, Alice Plack, Laura Shumaker, Emmet Hager and Harriet Markey.

Junior high—Ollie Brick, Elsa Dapper, Clara Garverick, Curtis Howard, A. L. Cattabiani, Ruth Wagner, Miriam Sayre, Robert Sheffer, Elizabeth Line and Helen Sletvold. R. W. Patterson is principal.

Senior high—Piner Long, Arville Emmenegger, Maurice Miltenberger, Gertrude Mann, Ruthanna Maxwell, Josephine Tracht, Walter Sindlinger, Helen Smith, W. L. Swick, W. R. Widrig, Earl Roth, James Walters, James Lymper and Evelyn Long. E. R. Pickering is principal.

Special teachers are Lucy Ailer, director of health; C. L. Mackey, director of physical activities; Jeannette Slocum, high school vocal music; J. Wendell Byrnes, director of music; Aurelia Meuser, elementary vocal music; Betty Zane Miller, supervisor of high school art; Minnie Schaeffer, supervisor of elementary art; Peggy Eller, girls' physical education.

Secretaries include Isabel Monroe, secretary to superintendent; Mary Ann Casey, secretary to high school principal; Eleanor Clonenwett, secretary to the junior high principal.

Custodians are: McCammon and Muth at senior high school; Carleton and Pollock, junior high; East, Dewalt; South, Burden; and North, Ireland.

NEW TREASURER ASSUMES DUTIES

BUCYRUS — Succeeding M. W. Quay, Mrs. Mae Kloepfer took office as Crawford county treasurer Tuesday, the second woman to hold the office in the history of the county.

Judge W. J. Schwenck administered the oath of office.

In assuming her office the new treasurer announced her deputies as follows: Miss Ora Ross, Bucyrus; S. C. Schearer, Whetstone township; bookkeeper, Miss Edna Geiger, Bucyrus; bookkeeper in the sales tax department, Miss Agnes Crowe, Crestline, and clerk in the sales tax department, Miss Alice Burden, Galion.

COUNCIL GETS NEW PROPOSAL

Bucyrus City Fathers Hear Plan To Settle Land Controversy.

BUCYRUS — Bucyrus city council heard a proposal submitted by J. W. Loomis, candidate for mayor, which he recommends as a plan for settlement of the controversy between the city and the new York Central Railroad company, when council met Tuesday night.

The proposal, which Councilman Harry Carle reported could not be done legally, was a plan for delivery by the city of a deed to local railroad property to a trust company, the deed to be delivered to the railroad only when the railroad brings to the city another industry commensurate in importance with the equity surrendered.

Council recently tabled the railroad's proposal to pay the city $11,000 in exchange for a quit claim to Bucyrus railroad shops, pending further study of the plan.

The finance committee of council was given a request by the staff of City hospital for a raise in salary. The request is the fourth to come to council in the last six weeks. City firemen, water plant employes and sewage disposal plant employes have made requests for increases in pay. Harry Carle, chairman of the finance committee, announced that his committee would meet tonight to consider the demands.

The gift of a four-unit swing from Miss Grace Washburn and a picnic table and benches from the Light reunion group, was announced by Bruce Sharrock, park committee chairman. The gifts were accepted.

Relief costs totaled $1,255 during August, according to the report of Safety Director Carl Jacobs. The figure is slightly higher than last month due to medical costs, Jacobs explained.

1,700 BACK IN SCHOOL TODAY

BUCYRUS — Approximately 1,700 school students returned to their desks in Bucyrus today when elementary, high school and parochial schools resumed sessions for the 1941-42 year.

Rural schools re-opening Tuesday brought pupils to duties at 10 buildings, with a total enrollment of 2,070 which is slightly over the figure one year ago.

An outline of policies was given by Supt. D. C. Baer and High School Principal Edwin C. Gearhart at the first teachers meeting Tuesday afternoon. Seven new teachers were among the group.

SHELBY CITY COUNCIL OKAYS FOOD STAMPS

Approves Plan Recently Put Into Operation at Meeting Tuesday.

SHELBY—City council approved the "food stamp" plan put into operation here recently, when it met Tuesday night at city hall.

Resolutions approving the city's participation in the plan and naming Relief Director Mason S. Freeman of this city as issuing officer for the stamps, were passed on recommendation of city officials who said that federal officials suggested the legislation be approved.

Officials of the fair association and Better Business club, co-sponsors of the annual event which opens tonight, were present and petitioned council to close Gamble street from Wall street to Whitney avenue, so an act platform could be placed there.

The request was refused following a 20-minute closed session. The street will be closed by Safety Director Mayor W. R. Morris as a safety measure when the fair is in operation, but will remain open at other times.

Attending the meeting as representatives of the sponsoring groups of the fair were W. L. Morton, club president; Leo Shaw, F. K. Kotz, Jacque Love, sr., Ralph Bly and C. L. Beal.

The council authorized the transfer of $700 from the general fund to the park fund.

"Fellowship" was the theme of the devotionals led by Mrs. H. L. Farnworth at the meeting of the Reformed Missionary society Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. V. K. Rice with Mrs. Floyd Kreps associate hostess.

During the devotionals Mrs. Kreps and Mrs. Rice sang a vocal duet.

Reports of the Tiffin Summer School of Religious Education were given by the delegates, Mrs. A. C. Smith and Mrs. Farnsworth. The latter as president of the society also presided.

Mrs. Ed Sprow and Mrs. Farnsworth were appointed delegates to the Ohio conference of churches to be held at Columbus, October 1, 2 and 3.

Hostesses for the October meeting of the society will be Mrs. Albert Fletcher and Mrs. Emma Furry.

Enrollment In Lucas Schools Shows Increase

LUCAS — Starting off with an unexpected increase in enrollment, the Lucas schools opened the new year Tuesday with what Supt. V. L. Gilliland termed the most orderly beginning in several years.

The total of first-day registrations reached 355 which is 26 higher than the high mark of last year's enrollment in the Lucas schools.

The biggest surprise in the registration increase came in the first grade where an anticipated 36, enrolled several months ago, jumped to 45 before the day was over.

Total registrations in the elementary grades was 194 with 161 reported from the high school.

Mansfield News-Journal

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 3, 1941

Happy childhood—when returning to school is listed among major troubles.

With four-fifths of the world's population at war the other fifth isn't sure its "minority rights" will be protected.

Word comes that a western farmer has a tractor that keeps going when he is paying no attention to it—and some automobiles are like that . . . until they land in a ditch.

President Roosevelt Makes It Clear

WHATEVER doubt may have existed in the minds of any Americans as to whether the United States is now engaged in the war against the Axis powers must have been removed by President Roosevelt in his Labor day address.

The president, as chief executive of this nation and commander in chief of its military forces, said: "We are engaged in a grim and perilous task. Forces of insane violence have been let loose by Hitler upon this earth. We must do our part in conquering them. . . . I know that I speak the conscience and determination of the American people when I say we shall do everything in our power to crush Hitler and his Nazi forces."

While it may be asserted that only congress has authority to declare war, it cannot be disregarded that by passing the lend-lease act congress moved so far outside the bounds of neutrality as to virtually align the United States with Great Britain in the war against Hitlerism.

In any event, it appears that actual declarations of war have become obsolete, and it is action rather than formalities that determines the course of nations.

Probably few Americans would contend that the hatred of Hitler toward Great Britain does not extend in equal or greater degree toward the United States, or that, given the opportunity, his attack upon this country would be less vicious and brutal.

For the present, at least, United States participation is confined to supplying the actual belligerents with munitions, food and other requirements of modern warfare—and to make sure that this intended help gets to them.

It is not a matter of "keeping out of the war"—as Wheeler, Lindbergh, and other isolationists or appeasers contend—it is a matter of being in the war and of attempting to find ways by which the conflict can be brought to an end while the fighting is still on the other side of the Atlantic ocean.

No Traffic Fatalities Here

ABSENCE of traffic fatalities, or serious accidents in the Mansfield area over the last week-end and Labor day may be considered a noteworthy achievement in local highway safety.

All too often, in recent years, this community has been saddened by the news of traffic crashes which resulted in death or injury of a number of persons and there was a sigh of relief when Tuesday morning was reached without Mansfield or vicinity having made any contribution to the nation's bloody record of more than 400 killed and thousands maimed on the highways.

Credit for this accomplishment cannot be accorded to any particular factor, although in Mansfield proper the increased efficiency of policing has already become noticeable, and state highway patrolmen have been doing admirable work in this vicinity.

There also appears to be an inclination toward more careful driving on the part of a number of local motorists, in such matters as observing stop signs, giving attention to traffic lights, slowing down in school zones, turning corners cautiously, and the like.

Also, as a result of having the driver's attention called to it by a patrolman, fewer cars are seen on the streets after dark with only one headlight showing, and there has been marked reduction in unnecessary horn-blowing since habitual offenders were made to understand that this practice marked them as mentally subnormal.

With provisions of the uniform state traffic code becoming effective this week-end, our new traffic squad giving capable and courteous service, and more motorists indicating willingness to voluntarily comply with traffic regulations, it appears that Mansfield may soon be able to shake itself loose from the stigma of being referred to as "the worst city in which to drive a car."

Fire Prevention Part of Defense

FIRE PREVENTION is vitally important at any time, but in this period, when we are attempting to turn all possible national resources to defense purposes, its importance is magnified many times. Anyone can understand the menace of fire to defense factories—one conflagration could delay vital production for months.

And it should also be understood that the prevention of fire everywhere is a definite contribution to defense. Materials and labor which are needed to rebuild a home or a barn or a place of business, cannot be used for defense work. The more fires we prevent, the fewer material shortages we will have—and the faster the defense effort will go through to successful consummation.

Keep in mind that fire prevention is in the direct interest of your safety, your security, your survival.

Hitch-Hikers To Be Restricted

THE HITCH-HIKING nuisance may be somewhat abated by a provision of Ohio's new traffic code, which becomes effective next Saturday.

The practice of standing out in the street, or on a highway, in a way that makes it necessary for motorists to swing out to avoid hitting them, is prohibited under the new law.

Hereafter, to be within the law, a hitch-hiker must not be in the traveled part of street or highway—and violation makes him liable to fine and jail or workhouse sentence.

The frequency of unpleasant, or dangerous, experiences with hitch-hikers picked up by kind-hearted motorists has steadily increased the difficulties of this method of tramping. Enforcement of the new law will tend to further reduce the number of highway beggars—a considerable percentage of whom may well be regarded with suspicion.

A noted baritone advises prospective singers not to drink—but it's only after taking a few drinks that some fellows sing.

It is a Cleveland movie theater that thought of this one: "Free 5-cent candy bar to all children leaving before 6 p. m."

'The Wallow'

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

WE CALL it "The Wallow." Crazy name. Crazy little place. Tumble-down shack by a two-by-twice pool in a bend of the hill. Fixed it up, years ago, for the kids to splash it . . . planning to build a bigger, swankier one for us oldsters. But the years have gone . . . and there's always been more urgent need for each dollar. So last week we got ourselves some pots of paint—

I'm getting an eyeful of the results as I write. "Crazy," did I call it? That doesn't tell the half! Looks as if a dozen sunrises had gotten themselves lost . . . tangled with a mess of fern and bamboo . . . spangled with morning sparkle—violet, magenta, jade and peacock green.

The walls, themselves, might do if they knew when to quit. But they don't. Peeled logs, they are . . . leavings of an old cabin. Khaki color . . . khaki that looks like warm honey. Amber dark in the clefts . . . golden dark as brook water. Nice walls. But, from there on, things go completely cuckoo.

The roof, f'rinstance. The roof's red. No ordinary, respectable, red-roof-red. Red as the flash of a blackbird's wing, zinging through the pines. Not that there's much to flash—the whole affair isn't bigger than your kitchenette. Just a flare of flame. But seeing it so, flung between sapphire sky and coral earth, it does things to you. Catches you . . . clings to you . . like the lilt of a song.

Inside, the walls have that liquid brightness that's neither yellow nor green, nor any dictionary name. Sunshine seen through water, perhaps. "Chartreuse," I think the decorators call it. But it doesn't matter. It's the feel of the thing that counts. You'd never believe old boards could hold such a riot of color . . . or that a half-pint pool could cup such crystal bright blueness.

Magic. Downright voodoo! And don't say I didn't warn you. Long, lazy wicker chairs, piled high with cushions. Low, squat tables littered with fruit and books. Sunflowers spilling from a fat, blue jug with a broken spout. A ragged rug from India, red and black and gray. A tapa mat from Tahiti, gray and black and red. And flowering, flickering over it all, that tide of topaz light.

Magic—I'll say! The kind you can never plan. Always, of course, I've wanted a swimming pool. One of those gold and ivoryish affairs . . . alluring acres of gleam 'n' glitter, spray 'n' splash . . . installed complete with hot and cold Clark Gables 'n' lovely Lamours. But my income never got within sniffing distance of my imagination. So that's why we have "The Wallow" instead of a private, platinum-set hunk of ocean.

And, looking down at it now, I'm wondering if that isn't how the best things in life always come. Not done up slick and shiny but patched together out of a bit of laughter and a scrap of song . . . a memory bright as a bird's breast . . . even a tang of tears . . . Something you call The Wallow, because it's so foolish and dear!

The Wallow! Faded curtains . . . shabby chairs . . . raveling old mats What fun we've had, jeweling you with color, framing you, deep, with jasmine and wisteria, ferns and bamboo. What priceless rest and peace we'll find, watching the sun set in your small, glimmering square . . . seeing the first stars bloom.

The Wallow! Thank God for the gay and friendly comfort He so often gives us in place of our stupid, gilded dreams!

Looking Back

TWENTY YEARS AGO TODAY

Saturday, Sept. 3, 1921.

Many cisterns were reported empty, due to prolonged dry weather.

Paul V. Wier, West Fifth street, returned to Purdue university to resume studies.

Final story by the late Herschel Hall, of Olivesburg, appeared in Saturday Evening Post.

Dr. Harry C. Sunkel, Mansfield young man, opened dental office in Lincoln, Neb.

Miss Helen M. Smith and Earl R. Kochheiser were married at the Baptist church by Rev. L. A. Wood.

C. E. McBride, Mansfield attorney, was elected president of the Ohio Bar association.

FIVE YEARS AGO TODAY

Thursday, Sept. 3, 1936.

Rosalie Stafford, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Stafford, was injured when struck by an auto.

Mrs. Addie Cashell, 68, died at her home on South Franklin avenue.

Miss Judy Palmer was elected president of Delta Sigma Zeta sorority.

Mr. and Mrs. Willia Harris left for an eastern trip.

Son was born to Mr. and Mrs. George Gutchall, East Arch street.

TODAY IN HISTORY

On this day in 1783 a definite treaty of peace between Great Britain and the United States was signed at Paris with the recognition of the independence of the United States and the establishment of its boundaries resultant.

Football Deaths And Casualties.

—By DR. CLENDENING

LAST year when I protested against the useless and senseless annual crop of injuries in football, I was told that there was "not very much football injury.

Inasmuch as reports that various coaches and athletic directors give out are utterly unreliable, I employed a clipping bureau to send me the records of all football injuries. My list is not a complete list, I am sure, because my clipping bureau operates in only one section of the country, and in midseason I had to ask for a wider distribution of reports. But even so, the summary is appalling.

I take the liberty of laying these results before the fathers and mothers whose boys are urged to play in high school football. It would also apply to college football but the players there should be old enough to look out for themselves.

Nature of Injury.

Total number of men injured (some received more than one injury), 675.

College or University	192
High school or Junior College	443
Grade school	21
	675

Nature of Injury: deaths, 9; amputations, 2; brain hemorrhage, 2; ruptured kidneys, 9; eye, 4; neck, 9; split tongue, 2; fractured vertebrae, 7; concussions, 16; internal injuries, 12; collarbone, 24; face injuries, 11; charlie horse, 12; chests, 2; heart attack, 1; blood infection, 1; ruptured blood vessel, 1; teeth knocked out, 3; head, 14; lime burns, 15; back, 17; dislocations,15.

Broken Bones: hip, 2; hand, 2; pelvis, 1; skull, 3; wrist, 7; jaw, 3.

Sprains: ankle, 45; wrist, 2; unspecified, 27. Knee: broken, 2. unspecified, 91. Ankle: broken, 22; unspecified, 21. Shoulder: broken, 5; unspecified, 33. Ribs: broken, 18; unspecified, 5. Arm: broken, 18; unspecified, 15. Nose: broken, 14, unspecified, 4. Foot: broken, 4; unspecified, 13. Leg: broken, 56; unspecified, 62. Unspecified (but evidently not minor), 66.

A Ghastly Record.

What a ghastly record! Nine deaths — without counting one mother who committed suicide because her son was killed in a game. Why this unnecessary and avoidable carnage? For the honor of the school? Nonsense — scholarship constitutes the honor of the school.

No—for a game only a few can play, that injures rather than promotes health, and is abysmal in its stupidity, that in ethics has descended to the level of the numbers racket.

U. S. Aid Against Japan Refused By Roosevelt at Atlantic Confab

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—When the unwritten history of the past three years is finally written it will show that three times during this period Great Britain secretly asked the United States what co-operation it could get from the U. S. fleet in the Pacific in case of an attack by Japan. And three times Roosevelt replied that the American Constitution prohibited any commitment in advance without the consent of congress.

It may well be that historians will compare these conversations to that between Lord Grey, the British foreign minister in 1914, and the German ambassador in London. At that time, just before the outbreak of the last war, the British were asked what they would do in case Belgium was invaded. Would they declare war against Germany? Lord Grey sidestepped the issue. He declined to take a stand. Many historians believe that had the British flatly stated in advance that they would declare war in case Germany invaded Belgium, Belgium never would have been invaded and World war I might not have started.

Similarly in the late summer of 1938, before Germany invaded the Sudetenland, Prime Minister Chamberlain called in Ambassador Joe Kennedy to ask what support Britain could get from the U. S. fleet in the Pacific in case of war in Europe. He reminded Kennedy that the British fleet would have to be concentrated in Atlantic and Mediterranean waters and could not operate in the Far East. Kennedy, after consulting Washington, replied that the Constitution would permit no advance agreement regarding the fleet.

On one other occasion during the Chamberlain regime when the situation was tense over Poland, Britain made the same query of the United States.

The last query came when Roosevelt and Churchill were on the high seas off Newfoundland. Again Churchill wanted the United States to draw a line beyond which Japan could not pass without a declaration of war from the United States. But once again Roosevelt refused to make a commitment without the consent of congress.

The Constitution is the Constitution. Nevertheless, it remains a fact that war sometimes can be averted by making it absolutely clear to a nation in advance what it faces in case of aggression. And our recent hesitancy over drawing a line beyond which Japan shall not pass may be compared by historians with Britain's failure to draw a line in regard to Belgium.

Probing Hollywood.

DURING the nineteen long years since Will Hays resigned as Warren Harding's postmaster general to become president of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors, his sway over Hollywood never has been so shaky as today.

This is chiefly because Hays is given part of the blame for the current senate investigation of the motion picture industry to ascertain whether Hollywood has been spreading warlike propaganda.

Naturally this investigation is the last thing Hays wants. But he made the mistake of writing an article in which, referring to Hollywood producers, he said: "There are those who would muse rather than amuse." This was immediately interpreted as meaning that certain Hollywood producers had an axe to grind and were trying to slant their pictures.

So now a lot of the producers, who incidentally, pay Will Hays a salary of well over $100,000, are asking just whom he meant. And the senate committee, completely dominated by isolationists, is planning to put Hays on the griddle and ask him just which Hollywood producers are propagandizing in their pictures.

Note: Last time Hays appeared before a senate investigation was in 1927 when the late Senator Tom Walsh of Montana interrogated him about a certain bond deal connected with the Teopot Dome oil scandal.

White House Floor.

AFTER three months, the hammers have stopped pounding in the White House. The new parquet floor in the East Room is finished. When the social season begins, guests will walk or dance over one of the most delicately carpentered floors in the world.

It's white oak, 3200 square feet of it, laid in the same pattern of squares and triangles as before, but done so neatly and with such precision that your finger can't feel where two boards meet. It's a job few dancers will appreciate. In fact it takes a carpenter to realize how much work there is to bring four points of board together at a single point, with geometrical exactness.

The job cost as much as it would cost most of us to build a new home. It's quarter-inch oak, replacing the old flooring of one-eighth inch, which had worn paper-thin in its 42 years of use.

While the spacious East Room (40 by 80 feet) was torn up, workmen did a thorough job of overhauling. There is a new base of dark red marble, running around the room, where the floor meets the walls. The old mahogany doors have been refinished, the three elaborate glass chandeliers have been cleaned and polished, and the entire room, walls and ceiling, were given two coats of white paint.

But Howell Crim, who had charge of the job, is proudest of the new oak floor. "When we get a wax polish on that floor," he says, "even a fly would slip on it and break a collar bone!"

Capital Chaff.

THE only thing people aboard the Prince of Wales with Roosevelt and Churchill will say is that at the final parting, as Churchill wrung Roosevelt's hand, "The Prime Minister's eyes were full of great big tears." . . . The best press releases put out in official Washington come from the Soviet embassy, cabled direct from Moscow. . . . Under Secretary of War Patterson recently did a unique thing. Testifying before the house appropriations committee, he paid great tribute to his predecessor, Assistant Secretary of War Louis Johnson; said that lack of delays in placing war orders was due to Johnson's pioneering. Johnson is a Democrat, Patterson a Republican. . . . Secretary of Navy Knox told Roosevelt the other day that he had a newspaper in Chicago which he would be glad to go back to. Knox didn't say so, but the stockholders of that paper also would be glad to have him back. Chicago Daily News common stock three years ago was selling for around $25, now it is $10. Five per cent preferred stock was selling at $100, now is under $90. Knox is one of the largest stockholders, so his continued absence means a big personal sacrifice.

Watching Trends

—By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON—Around Capital Town:

When the supreme court reconvenes in October, there will be added to its furnishings one of the strangest articles that the highest judicial body of the land has seen in modern times. It is new Associate Justice Robert H. Jackson's rocking chair.

When the new justice came to Washington seven years ago, he brought his rocking chair with him. In it, he would sit and rock and read his briefs. It's just a plain, ordinary rocking chair—no fancier than Grandma used to sit and knit in. But up the political ladder it went with Mr. Jackson. When he was solicitor general, it was in his office and there he would sit and rock and read briefs by the hour. As attorney general, he did not have so much brief reading to do, and the chair went into a little cubby hole several rooms removed from that spacious one where he held his conferences and mapped the policies and fights of the justice department. Still, there were days, many of them, when he slipped away to solve his problems in the old rocker.

As associate justice of the supreme court, there probably will be as much brief reading as the one-time lawyer of Jamestown, N. Y., has ever done — and the story is that he will do most of it from the little old rocking chair that has seen him through to one of the highest judicial posts in the land.

It's something of a paradox that the supreme court had to emerge from "its horse-and-buggy days" before it got its first rocking chair justice.

OVER in "Defense Square"—a quadrangle of land between the Willard and Washington hotels and the department of commerce—a score or more of the weapons and accoutrements of modern warfare are on display.

There are machine guns, anti-aircraft guns, mortars, cannon, an airplane, tanks, and what-not. It is becoming one of the most popular exhibits in Washington. There is no admittance fee and no restrictions. People swarm over the exhibits, take pictures of them, and listen to the soldiers in charge explain details of how they work.

Walking past the other day, an officer in the naval information service let out a good round oath.

"Look," he almost screamed. I did and there was the navy's newest amphibian tank—with a couple of youngsters perched on its top, peering into its innards and listening, open-mouthed, while a navy spieler inside explained how it worked.

"I don't know what you call it, but it's the height of something or other," said the naval officer. "I've been trying for weeks to get permission to put out pictures of that tank to the newspapers and magazines. The answer has always been, 'Not a chance, it's a military secret'."

DEFENSE housing has given rise to more experiments than you could shake a stick at. One of the latest developed by Charles F. Palmer's defense housing agency is a two-family, two-section, movable duplex. Each section is 12 feet wide and 24 feet long. Each has a living room in the center, a kitchen at one end, a bath at the other.

It would hardly be worth mentioning except that each section has just one slope of the roof and the two hook together like children's building blocks.

The 12-foot width was arrived at because that is the maximum width of any structure in most states that may be moved down a public highway. When defense housing wants to move, all they have to do is unhook the pieces, load them on long trucks and pack them off to new centers, no matter how many miles away.

A Farmer's Diary

Corn for the Cannery

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

DRIVING south of Columbus, in Clinton county, last week, I saw ears of fresh sweetcorn scattered along the berm, and some were crushed by passing cars upon the road. I passed several farm trucks piled with freshly plucked ears, all headed the same direction. Along the road, fields of sweetcorn fodder stood, bereft of ears—green, but emaciated.

On a narrow road, around the bend from a village, I came to ten trucks and several horse-drawn ladder wagons grouped about a cannery. Mammoth loads of sweetcorn had rows of ears upright around the edges, so that a larger heap might be piled on top. Beneath an overshoot, at one side of the big red building, pale green corn husks came spewing out of an endless belt. A farmer was loading them onto his empty rack and other wagons were moving away with stray husks blowing off behind them.

High up under the eaves, white milky cobs tumbled from a conveyor into a great vat. A boy in boots sat on the roof watching to see that the cobs did not pile too high. White juice dripped down through a chink to the cement below.

What a busy place! Whir of machinery, bursts of steam, thud of unloading corn. I entered a side door where the floor was piled high with shiny tin cans and followed the process through from start to finish.

I saw the corn husked, trimmed and sorted so that only perfect ears remained. These were washed and sliced off—all by machinery—so that the cobs went one way and the milky corn was sifted down another, into cooking vats where it was blanched until a lacy froth stood on the top and the air was filled with steam.

Then the cans were filled and sealed and processed 70 minutes in gigantic pressure cookers after which an endless belt carried them to where the bright paper labels were attached.

"How many can you do in a day here?" I shouted to one of the men who tended the cookers.

What I thought he said, shouting back, was "Twelve thousand dozens!"

As I watched, bits of sticky corn would spurt on my hat and shirt, so that I carried away a lush, corny fragrance on my clothes and in my memory.

Fifty persons, mostly women, were employed. They work 10 hours a day for about six weeks, during the corn canning season.

"How much do you get for a load of corn?" I asked a farmer. "Is the crop a paying one?"

"We get $9 a ton and it goes three and a-half to 4 tons to the acre. The fodder is left for the silo and we can take home the husks and chop them in, too. It's a good cash crop and the work comes just right."

"What becomes of the cobs?" I wondered.

"The man who owns the cannery has a farm. He feed the green cobs to his stock or spreads them on his land. Sometimes he sells a few back to the farmers. They make real good feed."

WRITER TELLS ABOUT POLAND IN CAPTIVITY

Correspondent Who Covered Invasion, Portrays Nation As It Is Now.

(Editor's Note: While in Warsaw as an Associated Press foreign correspondent, Lloyd Lehrbas saw the European war begin at daybreak two years ago today and wrote dramatic accounts of the bombing of Warsaw and the Nazi blitzkrieg that destroyed Poland in a month. From authoritative sources he has developed a picture of what has happened to Poland in captivity.)

By LLOYD LEHRBAS

WASHINGTON — "Poland will live again!"

Poles still are singing that line of their national anthem, and those who escaped the Nazi blitzkrieg of their native land two years ago still are fighting for the rebirth of the Polish republic.

The strong-hearted phrase, says Jan Ciechanowski, the Polish ambassador to the United States, is singing also in the hearts of 35,000,000 Poles living under the conqueror's rule in their homeland.

"Despite two years of captivity," the ambassador said today, "the Poles are undaunted. Starved as they are, maltreated as they are, enslaved as they are —despoiled of everything by the most ruthless and brutal extermination in history — they have never lost hope, and never faltered in their resistance. They never will!"

The republic of Poland today consists of a Polish government-in-exile in London, Polish troops in action in Europe and the Near East, Polish pilots in the skies over Europe in American and British planes, and Polish volunteers being organized and in training in Soviet Russia and Canada.

Poland's hope for the future lies in the Poles' fight—inside and outside Poland—and the pledges by Great Britain and Soviet Russia, after two dark years, that the republic of Poland will live again when "Nazi tryanny" has been vanquished.

The actual land of Poland, divided by Nazi Germany and Soviet Russia after their conquest, is now all under German rule since the German armies, attacking Hitler's one time Axis partner, have swept across the eastern half of Poland which was occupied by the Red army, and on into old Russia.

(The United States still recognizes the Poland-that-was as a sovereign and independent nation and maintains diplomatic relations with the exile government in England. The historic eight-point program of post-war aims in which President Roosevelt joined with Prime Minister Churchill included restoration of sovereign rights and self-government to all peoples deprived of them by force.)

While Poland's population of 35,000,000 are ruled by their German conquerors, the Polish government-in-exile, fighting to regain the nation's independence, has established the temporary capital in London.

The Polish government fled with the remnants of the army when the Germans and Russians swept through Poland. All of its former leaders have disappeared from the scene.

President Ignace Mosciki, elderly and ill, lives in quiet retirement in Switzerland where, for many years, he was a university professor.

Marshal Edward Smygly-Rydz, who was the commander-in-chief of the Polish army and the nation's virtual dictator, was interned for many months in Rumania. Suddenly he disappeared, and it has since been established that he succeeded in fleeing from Rumania. He was last reported in Palestine, but Polish embassy officials say his present whereabouts is unknown.

Joseph Beck, the foreign minister, still is interned in Rumania. After spending several months in hospital he was last reported living under guard of Rumanian and German secret police in the Bucharest villa of Madame Lupescu—who fled to Cuba with King Carol.

To replace the government that led Poland to disaster, the Poles have established in London a government under the presidency of Wladyslaw Raczkiewicz, the former president of the Polish senate, and Prime Minister General Wladislaw Sikorski, a soldier who fought valiantly to the very end.

A council of 24 members confers on all questions effecting Poland's war effort and the future of Poland.

Poland has maintained diplomatic relations with the United States, Great Britain, Switzerland, Sweden, Spain and, despite its Axis membership, with Japan.

Friendly diplomatic relations were also reestablished with Soviet Russia in the July 30 agreement.

This Polish government's white papers, based on information smuggled out of the country by Polish agents, charge that the Nazi have made of Poland a land of hunger, stark fear, wrecked churches and schools, executions and cruel and methodical deportations.

The latest white paper (issued August 14) charges that at least 70,000 civilians have been executed, some in "massacres" that wiped out entire villages and towns.

Among those who have been "assassinated," the white paper reported, was Stefan Starzynski, the heroic mayor of Warsaw, who led soldiers and citizens of the besieged capital in a valiant defense that crumbled only when Warsaw was a mass of ruins from bombs and shells.

(The Germans have acknowledged that many Poles have been arrested, tried and executed since the German occupation, but allege they were all guilty of sniping, sabotage or other grave crimes against the German occupation forces).

Meanwhile, the Poles themselves are battling for the return of their homeland to its own governance.

From the remnants of the once proud Polish army, gathered in driblets from temporary refuges over most of the Europe, General Sikorski, the Polish prime minister and commander-in-chief, has forged a new army which is fighting anew for the freedom of Poland.

In England, a Polish army of 50,000 well-trained men is prepared to help fight off any German invasion. Polish units fought with the British in Greece, Syria and Libya.

An air force of 10,000-including 2,000 pilots, flying American and British planes—is active in the skies over Europe. They have taken part, with particular eagerness, in a number of bombing raids over Germany. The Mosciusko squadron of the RAF has more than 300 aerial victories to its credits.

In Canada a Polish Legion is being organized. Many of the volunteers are Americans of Polish descent, but the Polish ambassador remarked today that "many can't even speak English."

(Polish embassy estimates are that between 4,000,000 and 5,000,000 Americans are of Polish extraction, of whom 1,500,000 were born in Poland. The greatest centers of Polish population are Chicago, with 500,000; Detroit 200,000; Milwaukee 125,000; Cleveland 110,000; Buffalo 100,000; Philadelphia 75,000; Pittsburgh 75,000; New York 70,000 and Toledo 40,000).

As the result of the recent agreement with the Soviet Union, the Polish government-in-exile is organizing, from the 200,000 to 300,000 Polish prisoners of war in Russia, a Polish army to fight alongside the Red army under command of General Andreas.

Of the small Polish navy only three destroyers and a few submarines escaped. All were quickly added to the British navy and have participated in a number of naval engagements and raids.

The Polish merchant marine—of which 14 ships escaped—has been enlarged, despite the fact that several have been torpedoed, and is now operating in close cooperation with the British in hauling munitions and supplies for the common cause.

Poland's gold reserve before the war was estimated to total $75,000,000. The swiftness of the German advance—coupled with the Russian flanking movement that cut off escape to the east or south —made saving the gold from the Germans an extremely difficult task.

By heroic means, however, most of the nation's gold hoard was transported into Rumania, to Palestine, and eventually to the vaults of the Bank of France for use by the government-in-exile then installed at Angers.

The fall of France made it necessary to ship the gold elsewhere and it was entrusted to a French warship to be carried to the United States. The warship —according to Polish sources— put in at French-owned Dakar on the African coast.

Since that time, the Polish government has been unable to get the gold—or authoritative information of it—and fears that it may have been turned over to the Germans.

Poland's fight has been financed by earnings of her merchant ships and what gold was saved, with liberal assistance from the British government.

Since passage of the lend-lease act, the United States has been able to provide vitally needed assistance, chiefly through the British, in enabling the Polish government to maintain its army in the field.

"Poland is fighting," declares Ambassador Ciechanowski, "and will continue to fight in the fullest sense of the word."

LEARN THE TRUTH ABOUT BOWEL WORMS

The signs are misleading. Nobody is sure to escape. Worms can make real trouble.

Anybody, anywhere, can "catch" roundworms! So watch out for these signs in your child or yourself: uneasy stomach, nose-picking, loss of weight, itchy seat, nervousness. Get Jayne's Vermifuge if you even suspect roundworms. It expels stubborn worms, yet acts very gently. If there are no worms, it works just as a mild laxative. Jayne's is America's best known proprietary worm medicine; scientifically tested and used by millions for over a century. So, play safe! Insist on Jayne's Vermifuge.

'FUNZAFIRE,' SHOWING HERE, A 'DEFINITELY SCREWBALL' SHOW

"Funzafire," fast-moving revue which opened the fall stage show season at the Madison theater yesterday was definitely, as heralded, "on the screwball side." It is among the "better" stage attractions that have been seen in Mansfield.

Comedians, dancers and singers invaded the aisles and played all over the house while Benny Meroff's band, which played on Eddie Cantor's radio hour for two seasons, held forth on the stage.

The show played in Mansfield by breaking a jump between the Stanley theater in Pittsburgh and the State-Lake theater in Chicago and is scheduled for three shows again today at 3:40, 7:02 and 9:45 p. m.

Meroff acts as master of ceremonies and the band, in addition to playing for the acts, gives impressions of Glen Miller and Artie Shaw's aggregations and indulges in a burlesque on grand o

Dancing is fast and varied and is headlined by the Hoffman trio, a girl unit aptly billed as "aeromaniacs." Novelty in the dancing line is introduced by high-kicking Pann Merryman, Louise Shannon, a rhythmic tap dancer, and Rita De Vere, an acrobatic performer of no mean ability.

Terry Howard drew a big hand for her impersonations of an incorrigible child and indicated that she could sing and play the piano as well. She worked with a partner, Ralph Rio.

Variety acts that sustain the action of a fast pace include Dianna Abbey, who presents the travesty on the opera star and affords fun in the aisles; Billy Morosco in a roller skating-dance act; Joe Bonnell, the saxo-manic, and an array of comedians, Ken and Roy Paige, Al Spiro and Al De Vito and company.

The production closes here tonight. Victor McLaglen's comedy, "Broadway Limited," is the screen attraction.

MISS PAULINE WEAVER TO WED IN ALABAMA

Young Mansfielder to Travel to Selma, Ala, for Quiet Service Uniting Her In Marriage With George F. Bechtel.

WITH this announcement friends are learning of the engagement and approaching marriage of Miss Pauline Weaver, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Weaver, West Fourth street road, and George F. Bechtel of Selma, Ala., son of Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Bechtel, 1861 Belmore road, Cleveland. The quiet nuptials will be solemnized Friday, Sept. 26, at a church in Selma. The young couple will be unattended. Miss Weaver plans to leave for the south on Sept. 23 where she will make her future home.

The wedding will be solemnized immediately following Mr. Bechtel's graduation from Craig Field Flying school in Alabama. He was graduated from Cleveland schools and attended Penn college there. He was affiliated with the Pi Sigma Tau Alpha fraternity. Before entering flying training he was employed with the Bryar Photo Supply company in Cleveland.

Miss Weaver, who is popular among the younger set, was graduated from Senior high school, and has been employed as a secretary in the advertising office at the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company.

Their Weddings Are News Today

Three who are prominent in the social news today are shown above. Center photo is of Miss Pauline Weaver, daughter of Mr and Mrs. J. H. Weaver, West Fourth street road, who will travel to Selma, Ark, to wed George F. Bechtel on Sept. 26. Mr Bechtel, a former Clevelander, will graduate this month from the Craig Field Flying school in Alabama. Left photo shows Mrs. William Leatherow, now of Hayesville, who before her marriage on Aug. 18 was Ann Ohler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Ohler, East Fourth street. Her marriage took place at the First Lutheran church parish house. Right picture is of Mrs. George McKinley, nee Velma Shupp of Shelby. The McKinleys, who are residing in Mansfield, were married Aug. 24 at the First Methodist church in Shelby.

Conclude Series Of Dances for Younger Group

Concluding the series of informal dances for young men and women between the ages of 15 and 19 will be the affair given Friday evening at the gym of the Mansfield Senior high school. The desire for such entertainment, under supervision, led to a group of youngsters beginning these recreational periods at the close of the school year in June. Dances were held each Monday evening this summer in the Y. M. C. A. gym with music furnished by mechanical music box.

Planning to make the final event a grand splurge the group have arranged for a Columbus orchestra to play on Friday night. Officers of the Summer club, as it has been named, are in charge of the plans. They are Myron Miller, president, Miss Marion Lutz, vice president, Miss Betty Ohn, secretary, and Judson Dolle, treasurer.

Members of the Blue Triangle clubs and the Hi-Y organization sponsored the weekly dances which were attended by 125 to 200 boys and girls each week. During the past few months this group has held picnics and swimming parties in addition to the dances.

LONG READING PERIODS URGED

CHICAGO—(U P)—"Reading periods" during which students may read and study for several weeks without attending classes, are advocated by a University of Chicago dean as an antidote to the prevailing American assumption that "education takes place only while the professors are talking."

"Reading periods constitute a step forward because they transfer a reasonable share of the responsibility for education to the student himself," declared Dean Robert Redfield of the university's division of social sciences.

"Also, they are or could be, a forward step because they call for an improvement in the lectures given by the professors," Redfield added. "It has worked best in the case of the better professors, just as it has worked best in the case of the better students."

Farewell Party Given Tuesday

Miss Thelma Vawter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Vawter, Route 3, was honored with a farewell party given Tuesday evening at her home. Hostesses were Mrs. Vawter and Miss Louise Vawter, mother and sister of the honoree. Thelma will leave Sunday for Rio Grande where she is enrolled in Rio Grande college.

Engaged Three Years But No Ring

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

My sister, who is 22 years old, has been going steady with a young man for the last three years, but has no engagement ring. She always says her boy friend never really takes her to places she'd like to go, such as dances and among people, but always to the movies.

One evening she accidentally met one of her boy acquaintances who asked her to go to a dance, and she went. When her boy friend found out about it he wrote and told her everything between them was over and not to try and explain. Now she doesn't know whether to get in touch with him or to call it quits.

To me they always seemed such a devoted couple, and I believe they did love each other very much. SYMPATHETIC.

As your sister and her fiance were engaged for three years, and there was never any question of an engagement ring, and he declined to take her to places to which she wanted to go, this engagement does not sound like a very serious affair on his part. The fact that he told her everything was over between them because she went to a dance with another boy, seems to confirm that he was pretty lukewarm. At 22, your sister has plenty of time to become engaged to a man who is more serious and less selfish.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

My husband has been good to me in our seven years together. We have a boy and a girl and were very happy until recently. He became acquainted with another woman whom he has been taking out. He always told me he was working late at the office, but a friend of mine saw him with this woman several times. I want to leave him, but I am expecting my third child, and need his help very much right now. Please advise me what to do—to go on living with him, or leave him?

TROUBLED ONE.

I can well understand that you feel tempted to leave your husband at the present time. You're about to bear your third child, and at such times women should have consideration and sympathy, the physical stages of pregnancy being hard enough to bear, under any circumstances. Your husband takes this time to be silly over another woman.

Don't think of leaving him. Stand pat. You've got your home and your children to consider. More often than not men come out of these trances, if for no other reason than that they do not want to be regarded with contempt by their friends. A man whose wife is about to bear a child, and who goes flying off the handle with another woman, seems to the community at large a pretty poor specimen.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I'm very much in love with a girl who was just graduated from high school, while I have one more year to go. She also loves me but since we are so young we can't get married. I have asked her to be engaged to me, but she's afraid her parents won't approve and, anyway, she wants a career.

We've gone together for almost all of two years, having tried to go with other boys and girls without success. We just can't see others.

Do you see any harm in becoming engaged about Christmas, or what do you suggest that we do?

PUZZLED.

Why consider becoming engaged at all when you are both so young and you have still another year in high school? Your girl says she wants a career. Patience is a dreary thing to counsel when one is in the grip of the ecstacy of first love. You'll both probably look back on this affair as one of the most beautiful experiences of your life. Keep it on a high plane, and try not to think of becoming engaged or married until you are both older.

Up and Down at Night — Muscles Ached From Pain

Mansfield man tells how constipation gave symptoms of rheumatism - like pains in muscles of arms, shoulders, back, and legs from knees to ankles. Amazed at results Vendol brought.

MANSFIELD RESIDENT

Mr. Fred W. Seith of 76 Newlon Place says. "When I am constipated I'm in daily misery and suffer from terrifying symptoms of muscular rheumatism - like pains, starting in my arms and neck, across my back, around my waist, and down through my legs from my knees to my ankles. Sometimes the aches and pains are almost unbearable and have me up and down during the night, keeping me awake for hours, all because I allow constipation to go unattended.

"Vendol proved to be exactly what I needed, and the efficient work of this fine medicine made it seem it was made especially for me.

"Vendol gives me the temporary relief from constipation that I need so badly, and when I get this relief the symptoms of muscular aches and pains are comforted beyond words. It does so much for me, I'm glad to tell about it so others suffering from the same cause may also get the same relief."

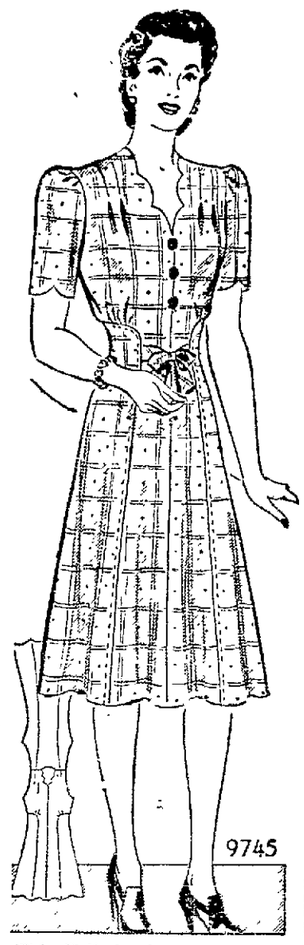
Send 10 cents in coin for this pattern to The Mansfield News-Journal, Needlecraft Department, 82 Eighth avenue, New York, N. Y. Write plainly pattern number, your name and address.



This Fall, be feminine! Marian Martin designed Pattern 9745 to give you that slender, pretty look that you love. See, for example, how the high-curved side-front skirt sections give you a nipped-in waist. The brief, front-tied sash can be omitted if you like. The V-neck is becoming to a mature figure, especially when outlined in pretty scallops to match the sleeves. There's a full-length panel down the back for willowy lines. You might use three novelty plastic buttons to pick up the color accents of your fabric. Altogether a charming dress—why not order it now and make up several versions? A clearly illustrated Sew Chart guides you step by step in making this frock.

Pattern 9745 may be ordered only in women's sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46 and 48. Size 36 requires 4¼ yards 35-inch fabric.

Send 15 cents in coins for this Marian Martin pattern. Be sure to write plainly your size, name, address and style number.

Send your order to The Mansfield News-Journal, Pattern Department, 232 West 18th street, New York, N. Y.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

I made as short work as possible of my story of the gangster's murderous attempt to get hold of Marion's letter to Ronald, and of his subsequent capture. My father's eyes were shining when I finished and, coming over to me, he lifted me from my chair to my feet and put his hands upon my shoulders, almost, I felt, with benediction.

"I am so proud of you, my daughter," he said. Then, with a quick veering of his mood, he looked over at Philip Veritzen.

"But she ought to be shot at sunrise, nevertheless, for so risking her life. Don't you agree?"

"Absolutely," Mr. Veritzen agreed, and then, to my great relief, he gestured to the door.

Veritzen Goes To Olga.

"Olga will be anxious," he said, "to know how things are going, so, if you do not need me further, I will go to her."

"We should be glad to have you remain here," my father said courteously, "but if you wish to go away, we do not really need you."

"Then I will bid you au revoir until the morning. I shall see you then?"

"I cannot tell," my father said. "I may have to go directly away again. But if I am here, I certainly shall see you."

He smiled at me, and then extended his hand to Philip Veritzen who shook it warmly, bowed low to me, and was gone. My father looked at me a bit quizzically when the door had closed.

Plans To See Gangster.

"You have something to tell me," he said. "Is it something which will keep until I get back from Greenwich Village?"

"Oh, you are going down to the hideaway?" I inquired, banally enough, for I had expected that decision when I told him where the gangster had been taken.

"But, of course," he said. "Even though, as you have found out, he is only a minor cog in the machine, to whom the other man must have telephoned before he boarded the train, he is of the utmost importance to us. But you have not answered my question."

Madge Induces Him To Wait.

"If it is possible," I said quickly, "I wish you could postpone your trip to the hideaway until you have talked to Nancy Carew, who as you know is a veteran actress in the company, and to Mary. Both of them, independently of each other, have discovered things concerning Stephen Redfield, Mary's leading man, which seem to link him to this affair, and to definite subversive actions. It might be well for you to have those threads in your hands before seeing the man in the hideaway."

"You are right," he said. "I will wait until later to call Gus. Which shall I see first?"

"I think, Miss Carew," I decided promptly. "Then she will have a chance to get to sleep."

"And sleep, of course, will be far from Mary's eyelids," my father said, "until she gets that letter decoded."

"Shall I call Miss Carew, then?"

"She will come over here?"

"Oh, yes."

"Then get her here as soon as you can, for I do not need to remind you that time presses in this matter."

Summons Nancy Carew.

I turned dutifully to the telephone, and in another minute had Nancy Carew's excited assurance that she would be right over. Knowing my father's little ways, I did not offer him any information concerning what Nancy was ready to tell him, and was not surprised when he said quietly:

"As soon as she comes in, and you can conveniently manage it, will you go into the next room, closing the door and leaving me alone with Miss Carew?"

"As you know, erroneously or otherwise, I believe that I can get more effective information out of anyone if there is no other person present."

Get Recipes From Friends At Picnics

By BETSY NEWMAN

A picnic is a good way to get new recipes, as you are invited to sample your friend's cake or pie, etc. I got the cake recipe I'm giving you today recently on a picnic. The liver sausage and spaghetti dish will be new to you, I venture to say, and it's so easy to make.

Today's Menu.

Liver Sausage and Spaghetti
Buttered Beets
Mixed Vegetable Salad
Chocolate Cake Iced Coffee

Liver Sausage and Spaghetti.

½ lb. liver sausage
4 oz. medium sized spaghetti
2 tablespoons butter
⅓ cup dried cracker crumbs
¼ teaspoon salt
1 cup tomato sauce

Cook spaghetti as directed on package. Brown crumbs in 1 tablespoon butter, slice liverwurst about ½ inch thick, cut into small cubes and brown in remaining butter. Combine crumbs, salt and tomato sauce with spaghetti, add liver sausage cubes and mix lightly together and serve. Serves six.

* * *

Chocolate Cake.

½ cup shortening
1½ cups sugar
2 eggs
1 cup sweet milk
1 teaspoon soda
1 teaspoon salt
2 squares melted chocolate
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 cups cake flour

Cream shortening, half butter and half your favorite shortening, add sugar a little at a time and continue creaming until well blended, then add melted chocolate, next well-beaten eggs. Sift flour 2 or 3 times, add soda and salt and sift again and add to first mixture alternately with the sweet milk. Flavor with vanilla and bake either in 2 layers or in shallow cake pan.

* * *

Frosting For Cake.

3 tablespoons butter
4½ tablespoons cocoa
3 tablespoons hot coffee
¼ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon vanilla
2¼ cups confectioner's sugar

Melt butter, add cocoa, salt and sugar, blend well and stir in hot coffee. Flavor with vanilla. Beat well, let stand awhile, then beat again and spread on cooled cake.

Child Can Be Taught Much Tolerance

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D.

● Those of us who believe that tolerance is the very basis of true religion have been happy to see all sects meeting and worshipping together in recent months, in the United States.

It is in the home where we need to first teach tolerance. Speaking recently before an audience representing a number of different groups, I said that the first essential in wise religious education of the child in the home is tolerance and it is best taught by the example of the parents. How can we be truly good with hate in our hearts? How can we promote regard for the inherent rights of others? Only by setting an example of love and tolerance ourselves.

Never Ridicule Other's Beliefs

Let us parents never speak unkindly of any religious faith. When we hear a child in the family ridiculing any religious group or religious practice let us calmly say, "In our home, you know, we never say such things," and then be sure this is so. I wish teachers would do likewise.

To be always tolerant toward the religions of others does not mean we must be indifferent or disloyal to our own. On the contrary, we should be proud of our religion or philosophy of life.

Example the Best Teacher

If we can prove to children that our faith works and makes us lovable and easy to live with, they will be inclined to give it a serious trial themselves. What we need today is more people with convictions and the stuff of character to live by them, so long, of course, as they do not interfere with the convictions of anybody else and his right to believe.

I have written a Parent's Prayer, to be had by writing me in care of this paper, enclosing a self-addressed envelope with a three cent stamp on it in like manner you may receive a group of prayers for little children suited to any religious faith.

Solving Parent Problems

Q. "Your articles on arithmetic informed me for the first time that the basic addition and subtraction facts did not mount up into millions of combinations. Please send me the 100 addition and 100 subtraction facts. Enclosed is a self-addressed envelope with a three-cent stamp on it.

A. They were sent, and with pleasure. They are sent to any one who writes me as this mother did, enclosing the stamped and self-addressed envelope, at 235 East 45th street, New York City.

Q. When are we parents most likely to exhort the child concerning his conduct?

A. When we are least fit to give it and he least ready to profit from it. We tend to make painful the very things we want the child to choose to do, rendering him less ready, therefore, to choose our way.

Q. How should vegetables be cooked?

A. Vegetables should be cooked in just enough water to keep them from burning, the kettle being covered with a tight fitting lid. A good way to know when they are done is to taste them. Overcooking destroys some of the vitamins. The cooked vegetables should be put through a sieve before they are served to the baby.

Q. Should a child ever be induced to memorize anything he doesn't understand.

A. Yes, sometimes, if it can be made a satisfying experience, as applied to beautiful gems of literature and terse statements of ideals. Some of the rarest bits of literature that you and I learned by heart in earlier years have grown more meaningful and beautiful as we have grown older.

"The Authority on Authorities"

DEVASTATING SIGNALS

Using an unnaturally high or unnaturally low card for a lead or not to lead that same suit on the partner's next turn, is bound to mean something regarding another suit or suits. In fact, it has become conventional with fine cardsmen that it indicates preference for the higher ranking of certain other suits, when the card is unduly high, and for the lower ranking of them when it is inordinately low.

Frances H. Stark general solicitor of the Western Union Telegraph company, with his precise legal mind, made splendid use of suit preference signals in the defense of this contract in a special mid-summer game of New York's Inter-Club Contract league. His partner led the diamond K, which won, and next led the 7 to the J. Mr. Stark being able to read that he had lower ones. That could mean only that he preferred return of a heart to a club.

Answering this, he returned the heart 2, the Q being finessed to the K. Since West knew his partner was sure to have some higher hearts, and that a higher return would have been normal through South's suit he read the 2 as asking for a club return. So West led his club 8 to the 9 and Q. The club A then bringing the 3 from West, told Mr. Stark his partner was now blank in the suit so he led his third club, the 2. South discarded his diamond 4, and the spade 3 ruffed it.

The heart 8 went to the 10 and A, the heart 7 was ruffed by the spade 2, the spade K was cashed, spade J led to the Q, spade A used to settle the outstanding trumps, the spade 10 cashed, but then the heart 9 had to be given up to Mr. Stark's J. So the contract was set three.

Note that, without these signals, either defender might have decided either to lead a trump to prevent ruffs in the dummy, or another diamond to make the dummy ruff and so minimize the threat of that club suit by cutting down re-entries for it.

Tomorrow's Problem.

(Dealer: South. Both sides vulnerable.)

If North gets into the incorrect contract of 3-No Trumps on this deal East leads the club 2 to the 9 and the spade J is led from the dummy, why should West cover it?

STIMULATED energies and brilliant ideas and plans may spur the affairs of the day to initiative and ambitious attainments. This may be necessary to break up static conditions or long depressed conditions in business or personal relations, where a sense of duty or obligation prevails. Also a disruptive or disintegrating state of affairs develops strange hazards.

Those whose birthday it is may find themselves involved in a year of depressing, disintegrating and baffling situations, which hold fluctuations and reversals calling for direct, bold and progressive attack in order to strike some sort a satisfactory balance.

A child born on this day should have a great enterprise and skill, with a brilliant mind and ingenuity, which it will need to cope with periods of trial.

44 MORE FILE AS CANDIDATES FOR RURAL JOBS

Two Days Remain To Present Petitions For Township, Village Posts.

With only two days left before the filing deadline, 44 more candidates for village, township, and board of education offices had filed their nominating petitions today with the county election board. Petitions must be filed by Friday night for the November election.

Complete slates of candidates were filed for Bellville and Sholoh offices, while three candidates filed on the same petition for the three Bellville school board posts to be filled this fall. Filing for the school board jobs were Frank W. O'Neal, Calvin O. Byers and Walter B. Woodward.

Mayor Thomas R. Zeigler, seeking re-election, heads the Bellville ticket. Other candidates for the village offices include:

John C. Eby, clerk; Richard H. Hursh, treasurer; Hoy Shaffer, George G. Bowers, Charles Palm, Frank Livingston, S. Howard Yarger, and F. J. Bridgeland for council; L. S. Ashcraft and G. E. Jones for members of the board of public affairs.

Seeking the Shiloh offices on the Republican ticket are C. D. Nelson, mayor; H. B. Miller, clerk; Harry Guthrie, treasurer; Freeman Whatman, marshal; C. H. Lannert, H. R. Nesbitt, W. H. Kochenderfer, W. J. Lehman, Frank Patterson and Albert Ferrell, councilmen; Clay Bixler, W. W. Kester and Russell Moser, members of board of public affairs.

Four candidates filed for two trustee posts in Bloominggrove township. They are Judd G. Sloan, O. E. Wells, F. O. Williams and L. E. Gettleman.

Other township candidates who had filed their petitions today included:

S. F. Stine, trustee, Plymouth township; Walter C. Streib, trustee, Troy township; Charles Coursen, trustee, Perry township; Carl Sparks, Raymond Wolford and Arthur Stober, Cass township board of education; John Russell, Hugh Swank, K. R. McConkie, and Ross L. Ruckman, trustees; Jefferson township; Carl Swadener, justice of peace, Jefferson township; Howard McDanel and Leroy Soliday, constable, Jefferson township.

Her Reply a Plane

Lady MacRobert, of Douneside, Tarland, Aberdeenshire, sent 25,000 pounds sterling to the British secretary of state for war, to purchase a bomber to be called "MacRobert's Reply." One of her two sons was killed in Iraq, the other reported missing after a coastal command flight. "I have no more sons," she said. "This bomber is my reply to Hitler."

House Numbering Charges to Go On City Tax Bills

Persons not paying for the new house numbers installed on their homes last winter will find an assessment on their next tax bills.

William J. Beer, jr., clerk of council, said today that about 725 persons have failed to pay the 30 cents charged for new numbers. The homes were renumbered by order of council to standardize street listings and avoid confusion from haphazard numberings by private individuals.

Those who have not paid already will be charged 50 cents on their tax duplicates rather than the original 30-cent price, Beer said.

HOLD SUSPECT

BUCYRUS—Bucyrus police are investigating the record of LeRoy Nagel, 20, of Iowa who was picked up here Sunday night on a charge of forgery.

On his person at the time of the arrest were four checks forged with the signature of Carl Whittaker, local business man, police said.

English bank checks have been made smaller to conserve paper.

CHAPTER XXI

Dr. Malcolm had sent for Kent Hillyer to come to his office. Dr. Halling was with him. Halling, white haired and distinguished looking sat at a desk—x-rays and charts spread out before him. Hill braced himself for the doctor's report.

"Your wife has a chance to live," he said gravely. "A little better than a fifty-fifty chance."

Hill said feelingly: "Thank God for that."

The doctor continued: "But there is something I feel you should know. If the girl does pull through, there is almost no chance that she will ever walk again."

Hill turned ashen, sinking into the chair beside the table where he had been standing.

"You mean—" he said aghast, "my wife will be crippled!"

"I'm afraid so," Dr. Halling picked up an x-ray. "In our opinion, she will never walk again. I'm sorry to have to give you this news. But I'm sure you would want the truth."

"Yes," Hill swallowed with difficulty. "I want the truth."

Dr. Halling continued: "Her temperature is falling and complications that have kept her unconscious are clearing. In a few hours she should know what is going on around her. In another two or three months she should be able to leave the hospital, if she has good nursing care at home. By that time the doctors will have done all they can for her here. She can be taken home in an ambulance and put to bed there."

"I see," Hill said very low.

"Mind you," Dr. Halling added, "this is just my opinion, judging from conditions as they are now. This is all based on the supposition that no more complications set in. She will have to be kept in an oxygen tent for several more days. It all depends on her recuperative powers from now on. Fortunately Mrs. Hillyer did not receive any internal injuries, nor was her skull fractured, according to these x-rays."

Dr. Malcolm remained silent throughout the report. In a few minutes Dr. Halling got up.

"I am going back to Boston today," he held out his hand. "Dr. Malcolm will take over. I have left full instructions. It isn't necessary for me to remain here longer putting you to extra expense. You can place absolute trust in my old friend Malcolm."

Malcolm smiled as Halling shook his head: "So long, Bob, it's been nice working with you again."

"Like old times, eh," the famous Boston doctor grinned. "When we used to cut capers while we were interning at St. Luke's."

Halling picked up his hat from the table. Then he bowed to Hill: "Good-bye, Hillyer. Perhaps I'll see you play golf again some day. I saw you when you won the championship in Miami."

Hill managed a smile: "Did you, doctor? Well, watch me do it again. I'm going to get that championship back some of these days. I never should have been too lazy to keep it."

"I'll look forward to your comeback," Halling smiled again. "I always did say you play the best game of golf I've ever seen. And I've seen 'em all. Golf happens to be my hobby."

When Halling was gone Dr. Malcolm offered Hill a cigar.

"Sit down, Hillyer," he said warmly. "I've a little time on my hands. I'd like to talk with you."

Hill did not care for cigars, but he accepted one and sat down in the chair opposite Malcolm's desk. The doctor lit his own cigar and sat back.

"Now about Halling's bill," he said. "He happens to be one of your admirers, and so he let you off a great deal more easily than he would have otherwise. I was pleasantly surprised. The money you have deposited should just about take care of things for three months if my calculations are correct."

"That's fortunate," Hill sighed. "Because it happens to be all the money I've got."

"Oh, I'm sorry," Dr. Malcolm said sympathetically. "We'll go as easy on you as we can, Hillyer."

"Oh, no," Hill said quickly. "Don't deprive my wife of anything she may need. I'll find some way out if more money is required."

Dr. Malcolm asked: "What business are you in, Hillyer?"

Hill flushed. "Well," he squirmed uncomfortably. "I'm not exactly in any sort of business now. I've been thinking I'd like to get hold of an estate on Long Island and turn it into a golf school, a sort of club school, if you know what I mean."

Malcolm nodded: "Excellent idea. Any number of men I know would like to get a few pointers from Kent Hillyer, the champ of champs."

Hill sighed: "But all that takes capital. Which I haven't got. Just between ourselves, doctor, it's all my own damn fault. I've played golf while Rome burned, if you know what I mean."

The older man eyed him shrewdly: "I suppose that's what happened to your marriage, son, if I'm not getting too personal."

"Yes," Hill looked at the floor. "That's it. I'd give my life to change it all now. But I guess it's too late."

Malcolm asked: "Didn't I see where you're going to get married again? Drusilla Bayne, the show girl, if I'm not mistaken."

"That's what the papers said." Hill's face colored. "But don't believe everything you read in the papers."

Malcolm smiled: "I seldom do, my boy. Especially when I see where the 'Blond Bombshell' is going to get herself married again. I assume it's just another publicity stunt."

Hill got up restlessly, walked to the window and looked out. His broad shoulders drooped with weariness, and he was the picture of a completely discouraged man. Dr. Malcolm's sympathy was stirred.

"Hillyer," he said then, "about this idea of yours. If you had a suitable place to start a golf school, your connections should fill your membership list almost immediately. Don't you think so?"

"I'm pretty sure of it," Hill nodded. "I belong to just about everything, and I know practically everybody in the sporting world."

Malcolm asked: "Do you know the Stiller estate in Great Neck?"

Hill nodded: "It's got one of the best private golf courses on the Island. I've driven by it often."

"I own it," Malcolm sat back in his chair. "How would you like to go into business with me? I'll furnish the golf club and you take it over on a fifty-fifty basis, using your name as bait. In other words, I'll back you."

* * *

Hill could not believe his ears: "You're not serious," he said slowly.

"Never more serious in my life," the doctor smiled. "You've got the name and the game. I've got the spot. Together, we should make money. It's purely a business proposition with me."

Hill sat down, amazement written all over his face. He ran his hand through his blond hair.

"You take the breath out of me, doctor," he grinned whitely. "I hadn't hoped to find a job, much less find one without going outside the hospital."

"It isn't going to be an easy job," Dr. Malcolm reminded him. "Organizing a golf school and getting the thing running properly will take up a lot of your time. You won't have much time for social affairs."

"That's good," Hill said shortly. "I don't want any time for social affairs. Give me this chance and I'll show you what can be done. I should have turned pro a long time ago and made money."

Malcolm got up, holding out his hand:

"Let's get together for dinner at the Doctor's club tonight at 8, if you can make it, Hillyer. We'll talk over plans there. Meanwhile you get your thinking cap on."

Hill gripped the older man's hand: "I'll be there, doctor. I guess I don't have to tell you how I feel about this. A chance to make the money to take care of my wife and child."

Malcolm nodded suddenly grave: "I understand, son. We'll make it go, too. I'm sorry Halling couldn't give you better news. But keep your chin up. See you at 8."

Hill drove directly to Douglaston. Gay was just ready to leave the house to go to the hospital when he rang the bell. She was glad Cherry had gone shopping. Kenny was in the kitchen with Hyacinthe.

"Hello, Hill," Gay smiled cordially. "Come in. Kenny will be so glad to see you. How is April? Have you been to the hospital this morning?"

Hill told her about Dr. Halling's report. That April would no doubt live, but that the doctors did not believe she would ever walk again.

"Oh, God," Gay covered her face with her hands. "Oh, Hill, how awful! It can't be true! It can't!"

"Halling bases his reports on the x-rays," Hill's voice shook. "Dr. Malcolm agrees with him."

Then Hill told Gay of the proposition Malcolm had made, and that they were going to open a golf school on the Stiller estate in the early spring.

"So, I'm going to work," Hill smiled crookedly. "Believe it or not! And I mean work. Dr. Malcolm says the money I've deposited will take care of the hospital. You'll need money for the house though," Hill said thoughtfully. "I'll borrow on my insurance this afternoon and bring it to you in the morning. If Kenny needs anything let me know."

Gay looked at Hill in astonishment. "All right, Hill. I'll let you know. And thanks."

"Where is the Goon?" Hill got up.

Hyacinthe was surprised when the former master of the house opened the kitchen door. She was frying doughnuts and had closed it to keep the fumes from the rest of the apartment. Kenny sat on a stool watching her. It was one of his favorite pastimes.

Kenny's large blue eyes opened wider, but he did not smile or run to his father.

"Hi you, son!" Kent smiled, embarrassment mixed with yearning on his handsome face because Kenny did not run to kiss him. "How would you like to take a ride with Daddy out to Great Neck?" Hill asked. "Daddy is going to start teaching you how to play golf."

Kenny's manner changed instantly. His baby mouth broke into a wide boyish grin:

"Whoopee!" he jumped down from the stool. "Where's my snow suit Hy'cinthe? Whee! Whoopee!"

That night the Hillyer-Lorraine school of music and dancing burned to the ground when a fire started in the store on the floor below. Every stick of equipment went up in the flames. And every dollar Gay Lorraine had in the world was gone with it.

MEET TONIGHT ON TRUCK PLAN

Commercial Carriers and Officials To Study City Parking Problems.

Plans for the elimination of double-parked trucks and the discussion of other traffic problems will be made at a conference between city officials and trucking employers today at 7 p. m. in the Mansfield-Leland hotel.

Martin W. Brunner, temporary chairman of a new truck company association formed to improve trucking conditions in the city, will be in charge of the meeting. Representatives of 16 trucking companies will attend.

Meeting with them will be Mayor William J. Locke, Service-Safety Director C. M. Crafton and Traffic Commissioner Frend C. Boals.

Boals has been planning a truck loading and unloading schedule to eliminate the necessity of double-parking trucks before stores on narrow streets. His plan calls for the setting aside of truck parking sections for restricted time periods during the morning and afternoon. Private cars would give way to trucks during the time periods.

Truckers will present individual problems tonight so that all can be combined in a trucking schedule. Train schedules and several other details must be taken into consideration in setting up the plan.

Brunner has announced that the truckers plan to form a permanent organization to better trucking conditions in the city.

ISSUES REPORT

Secretary Says 85 Per Cent Pay For Garbage Service.

More than 85 per cent of the Mansfield residents served by the city's garbage service have paid their bills for the next three months, Fred E. Lingafelter, secretary of the water, sewage and garbage departments, announced today.

Lingafelter said that approximately $8,600 of the $9,900 to be collected had been paid into his office and that the names of delinquents had been placed on a "quit service" list.

The $9,900, which will pay for service for September, October and November, is the largest bill ever presented Mansfield residents for garbage collection. Lingafelter said that the rate payment was the best for years.

CARGO REFUSED BY STEVEDORES

BOSTON—(U.P.)—This port has lost $100,000 in annual business because longshoremen refused to handle strong-smelling soap stock.

"Money isn't everything," they said when shippers offered to pay an additional 15 cents an hour. The longshoremen said their noses would go on strke unless wages were doubled for the job. This made shipments impossible at present.

THEATERS

Holds Air Thriller.

"Dive Bomber," the technicolor air thriller showing at the Ohio, has been held over through Friday due to its popular appeal. Starring Errol Flynn and Fred MacMurray the picture employs every type of fighting and observation plane used by the U. S. Navy. Although most of the action was filmed at the San Diego base, some important scenes were shot at Pensacola and Pearl Harbor. Centering around the efforts of modern flight surgeons to keep military and naval fliers physically fit for the air, the picture was supervised by a member of the U. S. Medical corps who was assigned to watch technical details.

Stage Revue.

"Funzafire," the lively stage show concluding at the Madison theater today, features Benny Meroff and his orchestra at the top of a cast of 45 singers, comedians and dancers. The company takes over the theater, invades the audience both upstairs and down, and even carries their antics into the lobby. The Hoffman trio, Joe Bonnel, billed as the pint-size saxo-manic, and Louise Shannon, merry-go-round of rhythm," are among the featured numbers of the revue. "Broadway Limited," with Victor McLaglen and Dennis O'Keefe is the feature picture.

Exciting Mystery.

Mary Roberts Rinehart's exciting story, "The Nurse's Secret," showing at the Ritz, deals with the methods employed by two detectives, one of them an amateur, to track down a ruthless killer in the home of a wealthy dowager. Lee Patrick gets on the inside by posing as a nurse while Regis Toomey plays the professional. "Accent on Love," the second picture, shows what happens to a millionaire when he leaves his white-collar status to become a day-laborer. George Montgomery and Osa Massen are featured.

Dynamic Drama.

The efforts of a young assistant district attorney, a veteran police detective and a crusading girl reporter to ferret out the human monster behind the disappearance and murders of girls who have entered a talent school are depicted in "City of Missing Girls" opening Thursday at the Park. Astrid Allwyn plays the reporter, John Archer, the attorney, and H. B. Warner the detective. Roy Rogers' picture, "Sheriff of Tombstone," the second attraction, is filled with western music as well as gunplay.

Comedy Feature.

James Stewart and Rosalind Russell are co-starred in the story, "No Time For Comedy," adapted from the stage play, now showing at the Majestic. Genevieve Tobin and Charles Ruggles are also cast. "Captain Caution," with Victor Mature and Leo Carillo, is the second picture.

ALL TRAFFIC IN STATE LIMITED TO 50 M. P. H.

New Traffic Code Fixes Top Speed Even on Open Stretches of Road.

(Editor's Note: This is the second of a series of stories explaining highlights of the new state traffic code.)

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS — Motorists who have been in a habit of stepping along to the tune of 60 miles an hour and up in the open country now will have to see that the speedometer does not register more than 50 miles an hour. The new uniform traffic code, which became effective Saturday, sets this speed limit.

The motorist may drive up to 50 miles, but above that he is subject to prosecution. Under the old law, 45 miles an hour in the open country was the legal limit but a driver could go 90 miles an hour or as much as the old bus would make—providing there was a clear road—and not be subject to arrest.

The 50-miles-an-hour limit will be in effect on all highways until the state highway director changes it. Should a traffic survey show 50 miles on any stretch of road too great a speed for safety, the director may lower it.

If he finds that more than 50 miles an hour is permissible, he may raise the limit. He may change the maximum speed limits any place on state routes, even within municipalities, if traffic surveys indicate they should be changed. But in all cases where changes are made by the highway director, they are not effective until signs indicating the new speeds are posted.

Twenty miles an hour will be the maximum speed while passing a school house when the children are outside.

Other speed limits:

Twenty-five miles an hour in all portions of a municipality excepting state routes and through-highways outside business districts; and

Thirty-five miles an hour on state routes and through highways within a municipality outside business districts.

Local authorities may change the maximum speed limits on thoroughfares within their jurisdiction if they are able to obtain approval of the highway director. They may never, however, set the maximum above 50 miles an hour.

The slow driver also must watch his speedometer. If he is driving so slow as to impede or block the normal and reasonable movement of traffic, he may be arrested.

The only vehicles not bound by the various speed limits are fire department, police and highway patrol cars and other emergency vehicles of municipalities or public utilities, ambulances and the like when properly identified.

CONTINENTAL DIVIDE

FORT WAYNE, Ind. —(U.P.)— Army engineers at Baer Field, new air base in Fort Wayne, have found a miniature "continental divide"—right down the middle of the field. Water draining from the west side of the field eventually flows into the Gulf of Mexico; water from the east side, into the Gulf of St. Lawrence.

GEN. JOHNSON: Testifies Tank Cars Ready to Haul Oil

By GEN. HUGH S. JOHNSON

WASHINGTON, D. C. — This mix-up in handling the eastern gasoline situation is a perfect illustration of what is the matter with the overhead control of industrial mobilization for most effective defense production.

In the first place, it is not a gasoline shortage at all. It is a transportation shortage. In the second place, it is becoming daily more certain that it could have been entirely avoided by a combination of close control and co-ordination of priorities planning in actual supply of a material necessity of daily living with a priorities control of transportation.

It is now plain by the simple expedient of using tank cars and by some mild adjustment of the very slight increase in cost there need not have been any upset in the supply of eastern requirements whatever. It is equally plain that there was several other ways, as for example, barges to relieve the shortage — if they had been planned and prepared for in time.

You can paste it in your hat and put it in your pipe that these things go together like fingers in a glove in industrial mobilization —price control, material control and rationing, power control and transportation control. They must sit at the same table and play the same game. A long step in that direction was made in the recent presidential re-organization of OPM. But even in that new set-up, transportation control wasn't given chips in the game. It won't work that way.

Let me illustrate by a particular example. In early 1918, we decided to make the complicated recoil device or "recuperator" of the French 75mm. gun. A good many people, including the French, felt that our industry couldn't do such delicate work. The war industries board was sure that our experts in automobile production could do it if they so determined. Mr. Baruch called on one of the best of them. The old blacksmith was dammed if he was going to take any orders from a pale-faced Wall Street operator. So he swore artistically.

"Go on blank blank you," said B. M. B., "I speak your language, but just excuse me a minute while I put in a telephone call." The call was to Secretary McAdoo who was director general of railroads. B. M.'s end of the conversation was: "Mac, we're having a little difficulty with John so and so about those recuperators. He wants to make automobiles, which are below recuperators on our priorities list. Could you arrange that, beginning right now, John doesn't get any transportation in and out of any of his plants?"

The reply was apparently satisfactory for the conversation closed. Baruch had no control over McAdoo. They were just collaborating.

You don't really mean that," said John. "What do you think?" replied Mr. Baruch.

To make a long story short, John became the best source of that production in the world and between him and Mr. Baruch grew a two-man mutual admiration society that ended only with the former's death.

I could multiply this historical example. Its only point is to show that all these controls must work together, that on the example of the eastern gasoline nonsense, they are not doing so now, that what it takes to produce that result is not hifalutin organization charts, but men of good will and high caliber, determined to work together for the common good.

Do we have that? I frankly adding to wait and see and, in the meantime, to support the new remit that I do not know. I am willorganization until I can see.

ASSERTS JAPAN DEATHLY AFRAID OF U. S. FLEET

Congressman Declares Japan Withheld Move Until Unit Was Split.

WASHINGTON—(AP)—A Minnesota congressman, just returned from six weeks of sea duty as a marine corps reserve air officer, declared today that Japan was "deathly afraid" of the United States fleet when it was in the Pacific.

The legislator - colonel, Rep. Maas (R.-Minn.), remarked in an interview that some of the fleet had been withdrawn to the Atlantic, but he expressed the opinion nevertheless that United States forces in the Pacific remain strong enough to fend off any attack against this nation, and at the same time keep open supply routes for vital shipments of rubber and tin.

Further, he said he believed that the western hemisphere "is in no danger from Japanese aggression."

"The Hawaiian islands are more powerful than Gibraltar ever was because their defenses are geared to modern warfare," he said. "No navy could get to Panama without passing Hawaii and no navy could get past Hawaii.

"Japan is deathly afraid of the American fleet when it is intact. It is significant that they did not move into Indo-China until the fleet in the Pacific had been split and part of it had been transferred to the Atlantic."

Maas, ranking Republican house naval affairs committeeman, began active training in July when he piloted a four-engine patrol bomber from San Diego to Honolulu in what he said was record time of 14 hours, 25 minutes. For the next six weeks he flew 18,000 miles, once making a seven-day inspection trip of "all our island bases" which he declined to enumerate. The development of those sites, he said, is ahead of schedule and soon the United States will have forged a chain across the Pacific to supplies which are vital to us in the Dutch East Indies."

The flying lawmaker said that if Japan should make further moves toward those Dutch possessions, he believed the United States should take steps to obtain the use of Singapore from the British as a base for counter operations.

The button problem again faces the Red Cross Production Center now that dozens of robes are scheduled for making. At least 1,350 buttons are needed, according to Miss Lenore Van Gundia, executive secretary, and they must be in groups of three. Anyone wishing to contribute buttons to the cause will aid in speeding the production of warm clothes for overseas relief this winter, the secretary explained.

Now that Author Louis Bromfield is being boomed by certain party leaders as a possible Democratic candidate for governor next year, he finds his home at Malabar besieged daily by politicians anxious to be on the bandwagon should the candidacy materialize. Among the delegations which called on Bromfield last week was one man who followed the author around the farm during most of an afternoon addressing him as "Mr. Burbank." Says Bromfield: "Possibly it was because he found me working in the garden when he arrived."

RAILROAD HEAD SAYS 20,000 UNITS ON HAND

Tells Senate Committee No One Had Asked For Data on Way To Stop Shortage.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — The senate committee investigating the eastern oil situation was told today that 20,000 surplus railway tank cars were available at present to transport oil from the Texas fields to the Atlantic seaboard.

J. J. Pelley, president of the Association of American railroads estimated in his prepared statement that there was enough equipment to move from 6 to 8 million barrels of petroleum a month.

Pelley appeared at the committee's request to discuss the possibility of using tank cars to help increase the flow of oil to the east. The railroad man said that despite the general increase in the transportation of oil productions, the use of rail tank cars for that purpose had declined in recent years, and hence a surplus of cars was available.

Pelley said that information as to the number of tank cars available could have been produced earlier had anyone indicated that it was needed.

In this connection, he expressed surprise at the testimony of Ralph D. Davies, acting petroleum coordinator, who told the committee last week that "this is the sort of definite information I have continually invited the railroads to supply."

Pelley said he had never received any request from Davies for any information, although he told Davies in June that he would be glad to cooperate in furnishing such data.

Before Pelley submitted his statement, Senator Walsh (D. Mass.) described the enforced curtailment of gasoline sales in the east as a "glaring example of bureaucratic blundering," and appealed to the committee to find "some rational plan" to assure fuel oil and gasoline to northeasterners this winter.

Walsh's written protest against blanket cuts in gasoline deliveries was made a part of the committee record.

He issued his critical blast after Davies announced yesterday that September gasoline deliveries to filling stations would be held 10 per cent below July sales. The reduction, the same as the original cut which was in effect the last half of August, means that pleasure drivers must continue to get along with about 15 per cent less fuel than in July.

Vehicles in essential public and commercial services will be permitted to take on what gasoline they require, thus leaving nonessential vehicles to account for the full reduction.

Eastern and western railroads meanwhile joined in a voluntary 50 per cent cut in the freight rate on crude oil, to encourage rail shipments from the mid-continent to eastern refineries. The new reduced rate of 2½ cents a gallon compares with the steamship tanker rate of one cent.

BROADWAY

—By Dorothy Kilgallen

Tales From Times Square.

THERE probably are more stories kicking around about the fabulous Tallulah Bankhead than about any member of the contemporary stage. Certainly not one of the latest, but one that has just come our way goes back to the time Tallu was confined to Doctors hospital in New York for six months, recovering from a general breakdown. Naturally her brashness and her expansive personality completely captured the hospital staff, and on the great day that she departed, a large collection of nurses, doctors and attendants gathered at the door to say goodbye.

Kilgallen

As Miss Bankhead turned around for one final farewell, all ears were pinned upon what they felt would be a pretty significant exit speech.

"Don't think," she said grandly, inhaling the fresh air, "—don't think for a minute that this is going to be a lesson to me!"

They were discussing quite another actress at the Hickory House, on Swing Street.

"Don't you think," asked someone, "that she acts with aplomb?"

"No," corrected another, "I'd say she acts with a raspberry!"

* * *

Then there's the almost unbelievable story of the reformed fifth columnist who went to see a Washington higshot with a problem on his mind.

"Remember," he asked the official, "the story in the newspapers two months ago about a secret weapon the United States had?"

"Yes," said the other, "but the report wasn't true."

"That's right," said the former spy, "but my country—that is, my country at that time—figured out what the weapon might be, worked on it and improved it. Would the United States be interested? I've stolen the plans!"

* * *

Apparently there are even gallant ways of insulting people, such as the remark we overheard the other night in the Barberry Room:

"We're much too polite to talk behind your back," a young lady was saying to a nearby table-sitter, "so would you mind turning around?"

Hildegarde forwards the love scene involving the chap who assured his girl friend that he always "thought of her first thing in the morning."

"Go on," belittled the damsel, "my other beaux tell me that, too."

"I know," admitted the miserable youth, "but I get up earlier than they do!"

At the Baroque the other night someone questioned the seriousness of a well-publicized romance.

"I know she's serious about him," a bystander remarked. "Because every time she gives him a look, you can hear organ music."

Mansfield Tire to Pay 25 Cents on Common, Treasurer Says.

A 25-cent dividend on Mansfield Tire and Rubber company common stock, payable Sept 20 to stockholders of record Sept. 10, had been declared today by directors of the company.

It will be the first time since last December that a 25-cent dividend has been paid. In March and June it was 10 cents a share, James H. Hoffman, treasurer of the company, said. He added that the dividend will be paid this month on about 150,000 shares of stock.

CHANGE ASKED

Shift of Lukens Murder Trial To Other Court Sought.

AKRON — (INS) — With trial scheduled to open tomorrow, Common Pleas Judge Walter B. Wanamaker today studied a change of venue motion made by E. Guy Hammond, counsel for Albert B. Lukens, 58, confessed slayer of Ruth Zwicher, 24-year-old musician.

Hammond declared that Lumurder charges of having killed Miss Zwicker on April 12 and then cremating her body in a church furnace, could not receive a "fair and impartial trial in Summit county."

Judge Wanamaker is expected to rule on the motion before the trial gets under way.

Airline Travelers Confused By Twin Ohio Hostesses

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Pretty Twin sisters from Marion, are confusing airline travelers these days.

Jane Holtz is hostess for Transcontinental and Western Air, Inc., on the Kansas City-New York flight, and her sister, June is a stewardess on an American Airlines trip between Chicago and Fort Worth.

WOULD MAKE OHIO OUTSTANDING CENTER FOR DEFENSE TRAINING

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS—Embarking on a program to make Ohio "one of the nation's outstanding training centers" for defense workers, Paul B. Hartman, the state's first director of defense training, today visualized instruction facilities in every community needing defense workers.

Hartman resigned his position in the United States office of education's vocational training division in Washington to accept the $4,500-a-year post in Ohio where he spent 20 years in trades and industry instruction work.

The 39-year-old engineer's first desire is to coordinate all defense training activities in the state to eliminate duplication of effort and expense.

Separate phases of the program now are conducted through the state universities, the National Youth Administration, and the state department of Education's out-of-school youth training section.

Hartman, born in Decatur, Ind., was graduated from Marion high school in 1918. He studied mechanical engineering at Ohio State university, naval architecture and aeronautical engineering at Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and finally received a master's degree in industrial education at Ohio State university.

He first was employed as coordinator of trades for the Findlay school system in 1921 and created one of Ohio's first "Continuation Schools" for specialized training of former students in industry.

He became vocational education director at Lima and from 1930 until last March he worked on a high school aircraft training program at Toledo.

R. W. JUDY DIES

Mansfield Man Had Been In Ill Health For Year.

Ross W. Judy, 47, retired employe of the Tappan Stove company, died at his home, 87½ Park avenue west, yesterday after being in failing health for more than a year.

Before joining the Tappan company he was a salesman for the Voegele and Dinning company. He retired a year ago.

He was a member of the First Lutheran church and the United Commercial Travelers association.

Surviving are his widow, Carrie L.; one son, Mahlon, both at home; five sisters, Mrs. Charles Kaufman, Mrs. Pearl Cairns and Nanette Rush, all of Mansfield, and Mrs. Ezra Schanzenbaker of Marshall, Mich.

The body was taken to the Wappner funeral home where Rev. G. E. Swoyer will conduct services Friday at 1:30 p. m. Burial will be in Mansfield cemetery.

Press Search for Men Who Attacked Girl, Beat Friend

(By International News Service)

JOLIET, Ill.—State police joined local authorities today in an intensive hunt for four men who slugged and robbed a young woman and her escort on a lonely road, stripped the girl and then carried her into a field where all four of the men assaulted her.

The crime—one of the most brutal in Joliet police annals—occurred early yesterday. The victims were a 22-year-old girl whose name was withheld, and Joseph Cernugel, 25, both of Joliet.

Cernugel and the young woman were returning home from a picnic when their car was blocked by another machine on a country road about two miles west of the city. Four men jumped from the other car and while one pointed a gun at the young man, another knocked him unconscious.

Then the four struck the girl, removed her clothes, and used her slacks to tie up Cernugel. Before they fled, the men emptied Cernugel's pockets of $12, and ripped off the young woman's wrist watch.

NEWSPAPERARCHIVE®

Sport Podge

by REX HESS

Ohio State's new coach, Paul Brown, may not be the phrase-maker that his predecessor, Francis Schmidt, was, but his "lean and hungry" demand for the condition of his players already has taken place with the Schmidt masterpiece: "They put their pants on one leg at a time the same as we do."

And now every high school and college coach in the state of Ohio is demanding "lean and hungry" boys for 1941 gridiron machines, and as soon as sport writers glimpse a grid squad that appears to be somewhere near playing condition, he refers to the gridders as "lean and hungry."

I went out to see the Mansfield Tygers yesterday, and found them lean, and tall and rangy, and wearing bulging calf muscles that indicated they'd have driving and staying power.

But I was very happy to see that they didn't look hungry. They looked healthy, and not only well but properly fed.

* * *

I shudder at the fate of a nation
Whose athletes all face starvation.

There wasn't much activity at the high school practice field while I was there. The boys were all busy changing from practice into game uniforms to have their pictures taken.

But the scene was impressive, nevertheless. An entire squad of juniors and seniors, with a background of one to two years of playing experience behind it, was preparing for just about the toughest schedule ever faced by a Mansfield team. They looked serious about the job at hand, but not worried.

Every member of what is expected to be the starting team had reported for pre-school practice with the exception of Joe Romano, end, and Louis Nameth, back, whose togs are waiting for them today with the opening of school.

An encouraging sign was the size which most of the squad had added since last fall. Windy Winbigler and Elroy Lightnin' Jones have grown into young mammountains, but still keep that lean and in condition look, while most of the rest of the boys have sprouted up into fair sized gridders.

They may not have added much weight, but they've put on size and strength, and look a lot tougher than that team of scrappy little fellows that went to the gridiron wars a year ago.

We'll have no pudgies in mole's pelts,
With hellies dangling below their belts.
(If that's what's meant by lean and hungry, okay. But don't starve 'em. They'll need plenty of steam this autumn.)

Johnny Hallabrin, Mansfield's gift to this year's Ohio State eleven, was among the interested onlookers at yesterday afternoon's practice.

He brings along the good news that the draft hasn't been too tough on the Buckeyes, that Charley Anderson, the big Massillon end, hasn't yet been called to the colors and that he's become eligible for the fall campaign, and that others who had been on the shaky side in class room and with Uncle Sam have been saved for the Buckeye cause.

All except Ross Durtschy, the Galion halfback, who had been counted on for big deeds this fall. Old classroom got him.

GOLF CHAMPIONSHIPS DECIDED AT BUCYRUS

BUCYRUS — Two local golf titles were decided by matches played over the holiday weekend.

Shooting two 18 hole rounds with an 82-83 Harold "Fritz" Schneider took the Chuck-Wait cup which is given each year into the permanent possession of the winner. Jay Winters was the retiring champion.

Don Haines in a match with E. Blair Ruhl was adjudged the winner of the handicap tournament.

NAMED COACH

CLEVELAND—(AP)—Ted Rosequist, teacher at Cleveland Tremont junior high school and former Ohio State university football tackle, has been named football coach at Cleveland West high succeeding Walter Shupp, who died last month.

Stars Pass In Parade In Stadium

Ohio Grid Fans To See Nation's Best Perform.

COLUMBUS — It's a veritable Milky Way of football stars that flows through Ohio stadium during each gridiron season. Performances of outstanding individuals do as much as any one thing to attract huge football crowds, and Ohio stadium is as good a place as any to see the gridiron greats, with the possible exception of the All-Star game.

For example, any coach would give an arm to have this for a starting lineup: Don Scott, Tom Harmon, George Franck, and Forrest Evashevski in the backfield; Dave Rankin of Purdue, and Al Kelley of Cornell at ends; Alf Bauman of Northwestern and Nick Drahos of Cornell at the tackles; Helge Pukema of Minnesota and Ben Sohn of Southern California at guards, and Paul Hiemenz of Northwestern at center. Every one of them is gilt-edged All-American, and every one has played in Ohio stadium during the past three seasons.

Of course, that team would have to have replacements so here's a "second string" that would be at home on any All-Star gridiron: Paul Christman, Walter Matuszczack, Bill de Correvont and Bob Westfall in the backfield; Ed Frutig of Michigan and Al Krueger of Southern Cal at the wings; Urban Odson of Minnesota and Al Wistert of Michigan at tackles; Ralph Fritz of Michigan and Joe Lokanc of Northwestern at guards, and Bill Bjorklund of Minnesota for the snapper-back. Don Clawson of Northwestern could be another back, and Archie Harris of Indiana would help out at end.

Of course, there are many other players of outstanding ability who have played in Ohio stadium over that three year period, but these 24 are all men who were named to at least one of the major All-American squads of 1940—the top 100 players in the nation as determined by the consensus of 25 leading selections.

* * *

From the next 35 players in line, you could add such capable reserves to the "Ohio Stadium Squad" as Harold McCullough of Cornell, Ollie Hahnenstein of Northwestern, Bruce Smith of Minnesota, Howie Dunbar of Cornell, Dick Wildung of Minnesota, and Jack Goodridge of Pittsburgh, not to mention Ohio State's own Jim Langhurst, Frank Zadworney, Vic Marino, Esco Sarkkinen, Claude White and others.

It is no exaggeration to term the huge gray horseshoe on the banks of the Olentangy "The Stadium of the Stars."

Mid-Atlantic Starts Play-off

The top four teams in the Mid-Atlantic league open their post-season playoffs tonight.

Using the Shaughnessy plan, third-place Canton visits Akron for the first game of a three-out-of-five series with the pennant winning Yankees.

The second series, between fourth-place Springfield and second place Erie, begins in the Pennsylvania city.

After the first two games, the teams move to Canton and Springfield for two games and the flip of a coin will decide the site of the fifth game if it is needed.

Winners of the two series meet in a final four-out-of-seven game series for the playoff championship.

Show Here With Clowns

WILD BILL TARZAN

HAYWOOD KHORA

Tarzan and Khora divide the catching duties for the Ethiopian Clowns who will meet the Krantz Old Dutch team, Toledo Federation champions, in a riotous baseball tilt at the Fairground Friday night. Besides their fun-making, the painted Clowns can also play ball, and Khora was recently voted the most valuable player in the Denver Post tournament, where the Clowns won the championship.

Clowns Bring Full Lineup

Meet Toledo Champions at Fairground Friday.

The nationally famous Ethiopian Clowns, semi-pro champions of these United States by virtue of winning the rich Denver Post tournament, will be at top strength Friday night in Fairground park when they cross bats with the Krantz Old Dutch, Toledo Federation champions. That means the baseball loving public of Mansfield and vicinity will see in action the nation's leading players and comedians.

Heading the Clowns will be such noted stars as "Showboat" Thomas, hailed as the best first sacker in all sepia ball, Charlie Rivera, shortstop of the Puerto Rican semi-pro champion Guayama team, and those stellar catchers, "Wild Bill" Tarzan and "Haywood" Khora, the latter voted the most valuable player in the Denver Post meet.

Another flashy infielder is "Abie" Selassie, crack second sacker, obtained recently from the New York Black Yankees. The No. 1 comedian is "Peanut" Nyasses, as mart pitcher who is really funny. Stooging for Peanut is L. C. Mofike, who stars in a rowing act which concludes the first part of the program.

"Peanut" Nyasses, acting as master of ceremonies, clowns from the time he comes out until the lights go out after the game.

Wahoo, Aussa, Impo, Gerlogubi and Abbadabba are other clown celebrities, each an artist in his own line. The Clowns who sport the humorous monickers merely to accentuate their painted faces and numerous pre-game stunts, are in reality the pick of all colored league ball clubs.

The game will not start until 8:30 but the big show will commence about a half hour earlier when the Clowns entertain with a series of comedy acts every bit as good as those presented by Ringling Brothers circus.

Among pre-game feature numbers are "Pepper Ball," "Golf Match," "Pool" and "Double Lightning Infield." In the latter stunt two batters hit infield practice at one and the same time with two balls constantly in motion.

During a seventh inning intermission the Clowns give their version of how baseball would look if played without a ball . . . and what an act this is! The concluding number by Mofike is a fishing act in which the Clown centerfielder falls out of the boat and has to swim to shore.

* * *

If anyone can figure out where all the water Mofike blows out of his mouth comes from, he will be awarded a fur-lined bathtub Some actors these clowns . . . and incidentally some ball players, as their record indicates.

Westies Plan Central Joust

Softball Teams From 5 Plants Play Here.

Plans are all set for the Westinghouse company's annual central district softball championship tournament with Mansfield playing host to the joust Saturday and Sunday at Liberty park.

The game schedule pits Mansfield against St. Louis Saturday at 9 a. m. and Lima against Cincinnati at 11 a. m. Saturday at 3 p. m. Sharon, Pa., will draw between the winners of the first two games, and Sunday at 2 p. m. the championship game is booked.

The tournament will bring around 90 softball players to Mansfield, while both Lima and Sharon are reported sending big delegations of rooters.

Darby Yarmon and Ken Ross have been selected as umpires by the Mansfield plant, Lima is bringing Harry Schlott to aid with the decisions, and Sharon also will contribute one of the arbiting corps.

"Ducker" Gyber of the Mansfield plant will act as official scorekeeper.

Youngsters Meet Vets

All-Star Game Pits Youth Against Age.

NEW YORK —(AP)—Two arguments almost as old as sport itself will be renewed before 50,000 spectators tonight at the Polo Grounds in the sixth football game between the eastern All-Stars and the New York pro Giants for the benefit of the Herald-Tribune fresh air fund.

There's the youth vs. age dispute, which seldom turns up on the gridiron, and the long unsettled question as to whether the players whose feats are given the greatest publicity actually are the best.

The All-Stars, of course, feature youth. They're all fellows who ended their college careers last season and most of them are just starting out again as freshmen in the professional game. The Giants have veterans such as Mel Hein, a great center who is starting his eleventh pro season, Ed Widseth, Ken Strong, Ed Danowski and Ward Cuff. They'll be matching their skill and experience against the youngsters' speed and strength in an effort to hold their jobs.

The "Heroes vs. Unknowns" argument gained fresh impetus in last year's game when an All-Star squad picked mainly from small college teams whipped the Giants after squads of more famous players had failed in four previous attempts. This year's team is drawn mainly from the big colleges, including the "bowl" teams of Fordham, Boston college and Georgetown and Cornell's "Ivy league" champions. Yet Jimmy Crowley, the Fordham coach who is in charge, has indicated that he prefers some of the less famous players to the "All-Americans."

MOOSE, CRESTLINE EAGLES TANGLE

Members of the Mansfield baseball team will take another shot at the Crestline Eagles tonight at 6 p. m. at Prospect park after losing to the Eagles last week.

Geiger will handle pitching chores for the Moose and Aston will do the catching.

Dodgers Resume Stride

Brooklyn Slaughters Braves To Take Playoff.

(By Associated Press)

There have been a lot of cracks about the Brooklyn Dodgers but so far there have been no cracks in them.

* * *

From time to time the Dodgers have looked doddering and their fans have become fearful. The latest occasion of this kind was the past weed-end when Brooklyn dropped a double-header to the New York Giants and came out of a 21-inning double tussle against the seventh-place Boston Braves with one narrow victory and one tie.

* * *

But Brooklyn has a way of making up for these lapses and yesterday the Dodgers overwhelmed the Braves, 9-2, in playing off the tie, just as they slaughtered the Giants, 13-6, on Sunday to cover up the embarrassment caused on Saturday.

Kirby Higbe had one of his powerful days yesterday and achieved his 19th victory.

He did not allow a hit for the first five innings and yielded only a half-dozen in the entire game.

There was only one other contest in the major leagues, the Chicago Cubs clipping the Cincinnati Reds, 3-1, in a pitching duel between old Charley Root and young Gene (Junior) Thompson.

* * *

Thompson allowed just four hits, but two of them, a double by Lou Stringer and a single by Stan Hack, were linked with a walk and a long fly for two runs in the third.

Root held the Reds to five safeties, and the losers got their only run on a walk, a sacrifice and Lloyd Waner's double in the third.

Due to the emergency, the nation's armed forces are not participating this year, and only the 22-caliber rifle and the 22, 38 and 45 caliber pistol events are being contested.

The arms consciousness of the country was reflected in the zooming entry list for the small-bore rifle and pistol engagements, the former attracting almost 100 more than ever before.

* * *

A field of 549 was listed for today's 50-yard metallic sight feature, far ahead of the record of 463 set a year ago. So heavy were the entries for all matches that five regular events were erased from the schedule, and the week's entire set-up changed to take care of the overflow.

The day's slate called for four 45-caliber pistol matches, three individual events for slow, rapid and timed fire, and a four-man team event. The riflemen, in addition to the 50-yard metallic sights classic, had an any sights race over the same course, and a two-man event at 100 yards.

The U. S. treasury team of four led 21 police squads through a surprise target event winding up the annual small arms school yesterday. The course called for five shots each with each hand at bobbing targets spaced from 20 to 75 yards. The treasurers missed three times with the right hand, but had 20 hits with the left to take the laurels.

BOWLERS TO MEET

Women's league bowlers, tentatively scheduled to hold their team organization meeting tomorrow evening at the New Colony alleys, have postponed the session until Thursday night of next week.

Crowd of 20,000 to See Stars

Indian Slump Turns Cleveland To Gridiron.

By JERRY BRONDFIELD

CLEVELAND — (INS) — Football bounced onto the sporting vista today, and, what with the anemic state of the Cleveland Indians, local fandom is expected to find the 1941 pigskin debut a little easier to take tonight under the lights of municipal stadium where the Cleveland Rams meet the collegiate All-Stars in their annual charity game.

* * *

Approximately 20,000 were expected to be on hand to see if this year's edition of the All-Stars has what it takes to score the first victory over the pros in the four-year history of the event.

The All-Stars are short on quantity but long on quality, and as usual the Rams are highly favored. Dutch Clark, coach of Cleveland's entry in the National league, admits the Rams are improved over last year's outfit.

Tom Conley, John Carroll university coach who directs the All-Stars this time, had only 27 men from which to mold the machine which goes against the bigger, deeper-in-material pros.

The All-Star line will average slightly under 200 pounds, the backfield about 184. Expected to start for last year's collegians are Bob Mellace of West Virginia, and John Doktor, Baldwin-Wallace, ends; Warren Desmore, Toledo, and Charley Maag, Ohio State, tackles; Ed Molinski, Tennessee All-American, and Jack Winchell, Purdue, guards; Andy Brunski, Temple, center; Don Elting, Illinois, quarterback; Johnny Knolla, Creighton, and Carl Estenik, John Carroll, halfbacks, and Walter Luther, Nebraska, fullback.

Backing up the starters is a capable corps of reserves which includes Heinie Schrenker, Notre Dame, guard; Ed Czak, Michigan, end; Fred Gage and John Tennant, Wisconsin, backs, and Joe Tofil and Red Zimmer, Indiana, backs.

Despite the presence of a highly regarded rookie crop, the Ram starting lineup will be one of familiar faces.

Paul McDonough and Stan Andersen will be at the ends; Moose Dunstan and Chet Adams the tackles; Barney McGarry and Hack Rockwell the guards, and John Haman at center.

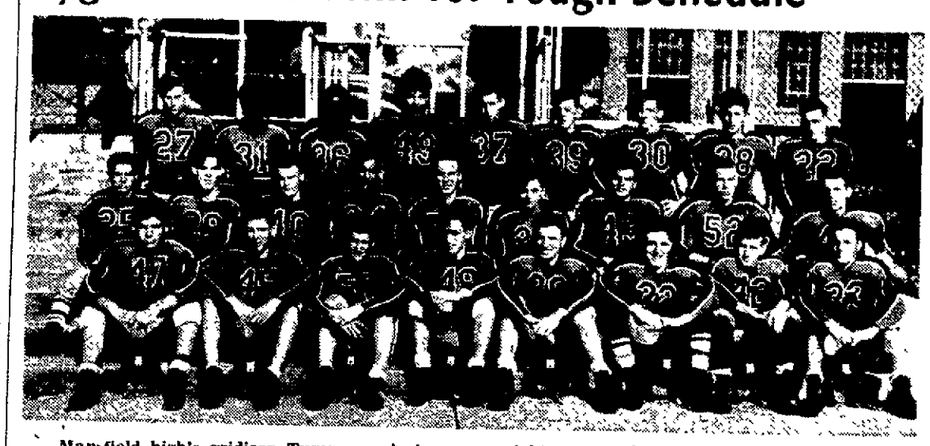
The backfield is sparked by Parker Hall and Johnny Drake, tailback and fullback, respectively, with Dante Magnani at the wingback and Corby Davis in the blocking post. Davis returns to the Rams after a two-year absence from the money game during which he coached high school football.

Champing at the bit and waiting to show the Ram coaches what they can do are Rudy Mucha, All-America center from Washington who has been converted into a blocking back; Owen Goodnight, a triple threat from Hardin-Simmons; Tony Gallovich, Slippery scat back from Wake Forest and Rudy Prochaska, a tough end from Nebraska.

Tygers Get In Trim for Tough Schedule



Mansfield high's gridiron Tygers are losing no time in getting in condition for one of the toughest football schedules in the history of the school. The boys shown above, all juniors and seniors with more or less playing experience, look in shape to go to the grid wars right now. They are, reading left to right: first row, Winbigler, Pecht, Arlin, Smith, Dietzel, Weber, Krupp and Doolittle; second row, Sferro, Timmons, Condon, Daugherty Frankel, Dallihan, Maurer, Snowden and Butler; back row, Stiffler, Burrage, Jones, Lewis, Herrick, Beattie, Boyce, Rachel and Brandt.

Sabin Tests Champ's Game

Off Form McNeill Gets First Real Competition.

NEW YORK—(AP)—The National Tennis championships, after four-warm-up sessions, gets down to serious business today with four-quarter-final matches on the Stadium courts at Forest Hills.

In the men's division, defending Champion Don McNeill of Oklahoma City bumps into his first real test when he encounters Wayne Sabin of Reno, Nev. Prospects are for a close affair, as McNeill is not playing up to his form of last year, while Sabin has been swatting the ball better than ever after a year of enforced idleness at the behest of the tennis association.

The day's other feature brings together Frank Kovacs of San Francisco, second-seeded men's star, and John Kramer of Montbello, Calif., with the somewhat reformed Kovacs a top-heavy favorite. Kovacs, newly-married, is doing considerably less clowning than in past years and playing more tennis.

Half of the women's quarter-finals also were down for decision, with top-seeded Pauline Betz of Los Angeles meeting Barbara Krase of San Francisco, and Helen Bernhard of New York tackling Margaret Osborne of San Francisco.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By Eddie Brietz

By HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR. (Pinch-Hitting for Eddie Brietz.)

NEW YORK — (The Special News Service)—Returning wayfarers from the amateur golf tournament report that the criticism of the Omaha Field club course that got Bud Ward in wrong (even if he didn't say it) wasn't all justified. . . . At least Omaha didn't have the chiggers that kept the boys awake nights during the open. . . . The Yanks hope to cinch the pennant before they leave Boston tomorrow. And if they succeed it will be the earliest on record. . . . The 1936 Yanks clinched on Sept. 9.

CALL THE DOCTOR.

Bob Quinn, the Braves' president, got a notice from his insurance company the other day suggesting that a physical checkup might be in order. In it was the question: "Is there any reason why you feel the need of a physical examination?" . . . Quinn tucked his tongue in his cheek and wrote: "I'd like to find out why I feel so well after trying hard for 50 years to get ball players to produce base hits."

* * *

Winston-Salem, N. C., is planning a big blowout for the National Boxing association meeting next week with Billy Conn and Ken Overlin filling the headline spots on a card that will also have some real fights.

TODAY'S GUEST STAR.

B. M. Atkinson, jr., Louisville Times: "The Bears furnished a sequel to the picture 'Tom Harmon at Michigan.' The title was something like 'Tom Harmon at Standstill'."

* * *

Chicago, with some three million citizens, has no college football nearer than suburban Evanston now that Chicago U, De Paul and Loyola all have dropped the game. . . . Harold Van Every, ex-Minnesota halfback who was drafted, will be back with the Green Bay Packers. . . . He will get his discharge because he has dependents.

Shoe Pitchers Pick Galion

Will Hold 1942 Horseshoe Pitchers' Meet There.

GALION — Buckeye horseshoe pitchers choose Galion as the site of their 1942 Ohio State Horseshoe tournament before winding up activities at Canton Monday.

Grover Hawley of Bridgeport won this year's convention in Canton, not dropping a one of his 15 titles.

Ernest Pry of Galion was the only player from this district, the Seventh, to qualify for the finals.

He and Garth Roop were the official delegates from this district to the convention held at the Canton Y. M. C. A.

Don't Think, Just Swing Advises Phillie Slugger

(AP Feature Service)

PHILADELPHIA—The batting philosophy of a leading contender for the National league slugging honors is very simple:

"Just step up there and swing—don't think."

It sound just a little too simple until you hear Nick Etten, the Philadelphia Phillies' rookie first baseman, explain it.

"A lot of fellows go to bat with the idea of out-thinking the pitcher: 'Last time up he threw me a fast ball, on the first pitch. This'n is sure to be a curve.'

* * *

"And zoom!—Right by you goes a fast ball. Then: 'That ol' curve's really due this time. I'll get set for it.' And another fast one whistles through. And then you're sure he's gonna cross you up and try to whip that fast one through for a third straight time and you get set for it and all but break your back on another curve."

He Does Okay

Forget about being smart, says young Mr. Etten, whose batting average of around .330 indicates it's a pretty good plan.

He started back in 1933 with Davenport, where the manager was a first baseman. So he became an outfielder—a fact that almost ruined his baseball career.

He hit 18 home runs and averaged .359 with that club and was sold to Pittsburgh as an outfielder. Optioned to Rochester he hit .298—but the scouts all said he was too slow as an outfielder.

* * *

He was just a slow outfielder who could hit and in 1936, batting .360, he was with Wilkes-Barre when he suffered a leg injury. When that healed he was pushed on down to Jacksonville.

That's where he finally stood upon his back legs and spoke his piece. He'd have to play first or, by golly, he'd quit.

He played first—and hit .370 with seven home runs thrown in.

With A's Temporarily

Hhe Athletics bought him for $7,500, opitioned him to Baltimore, then recalled him to replace the injured Dick Seibert.

But he went back to Baltimore, no strings attached, and proceeded to go to town in 1939 and 1940. The Phillies bought him up this year and their victory string would be all but nil without his bat.

New Hollywood Glamor Girl Sets Kissless Record

Glamor girl Veronica Lake, the blonde with the shock of hair over the right eye, is setting something of a kissless record for Hollywood.

She was catapaulted to stardom via a publicity buildup and her work in "I Wanted Wings" after taking minor roles in four earlier movies.

She was never kissed in the minor roles, she wasn't kissed in "I Wanted Wings," and she won't be kissed in her next vehicle, "Sullivan's Travels," in which she shares honors with Joel McCrea.

In the minor roles Veronica wasn't important enough to get a screen kiss.

There are other kissless heroines in Hollywood, too. Frances Gifford, for instance, rarely is kissed because she plays in Westerns, where the heroes don't go in for the "sissy stuff" on the screen. Small boy America likes cowboys on the he-man side, without kissing.

John Kimbrough is all set to become a movie star in the next step in his colorful career. The handsome all-American plunging fullback of Texas A. & M. completed his six weeks Army training at Camp Bullis July 15 and headed for Hollywood to cign a movie

One Victory Decides Race

Even Good Rain Would Win For Columbus.

(By Associated Press)

All the Columbus Red Birds asked for today was one more victory in their six remaining American Association games, or one more defeat for Louisville, or a good rainstorm to wash away another Louisville game.

If any of these things occur, Columbus is undisputed regular season champion of the association for 1941. The Red Birds were assured of at least a tie for first place last night when they defeated Toledo, 7 to 6, while second-place Louisville was rained out at Indianapolis in the series finale.

* * *

Each club has six games left to play. To tie, Louisville must win all while Columbus is losing all.

The defeat dropped Toledo three full games out of the first division and practically assured a playoff lineup of Columbus, Louisville, Minneapolis and Kansas City.

Kansas City made the most of this chance to improve its hold on fourth place by defeating Milwaukee twice, 10 to 2 and 2 to 1.

Six-hit pitching by Vedie Himsl gave St. Paul a 5 to 3 victory over Minneapolis in the final game of the 1941 intercity series.

Dick West, of the Cincinnati Reds, and Pee Wee Reese, of the Brooklyn Dodgers, were schoolmates in Louisville only a few years ago. Although rivals now during the National League season, they are inseperable pals during the winter.

Coaches Lost To Big Six

Defense Program Nabs Gridiron Aides.

By HAROLD CLAASSEN

KANSAS CITY—(AP)—The Big Six hasn't lost many star football players to the defense program, but Uncle Sam has claimed as officers a trio of coaches any school would welcome.

Nebraska, last year's conference champion and Rose Bowl visitor, must do without Lieut. Col. W. Harold Browne and Capt. Harold G. Petz during the coming campaign. Browne, top aid to Major L. M. (Biff) Jones in the Nebraska grid wars, devised the team's defensive maneuvers and tutored the backs. Petz, primarily a track coach, helped with the freshmen gridders.

Missouri lost Lieut. Houston (Hoot) Betty, line-builder.

The Huskers also contributed four players to Uncle Sam's military might, chief of them being Eddie Schwartzkopf, guard.

Oklahoma was the most generous with its grid talent. Six varsity players enlisted and 17 other squad members are draft eligibles. The enlistments took away Olin Keith, senior guard; Tommy Tall Chief, 220-pound Osage Indian, and Harvey Stone. The latter two were the best line prospects to appear on the Sooner campus in recent years.

Kansas State escaped virtually unscathed while Iowa State will miss Stanley Brown, letterman center and just about the only Cyclone pivot candidate.

Gwinn Henry's maturing Kansas University outfit relinquished its claims to only Jay Kern and Herb Hartman, starting guards. Henry, however, suspected the two would be drafted and spent most of the spring training season developing replacements.

Bill Cunningham, fullback at Missouri the past two seasons, has applied for a commission in the army air corps and also has received his questionnaire. He is one of three Tigers to answer the army's questions but none has been called.

Big Six faculty representatives discussed the freshmen eligibility at their spring meeting but delayed action until later. Agitation for making junior college graduates eligible for competition their first year on a Big Six campus, however, has been suggested. Such a law recently was passed by the neighboring Missouri Valley conference.

Athletic directors and business managers say the loss of manpower has been so little it has had no effect on ticket prices or game schedules for the future.

In contrast, Oklahoma announces all box seats for its annual joust with Texas on Oct. 11 were sold 10 weeks before the game.

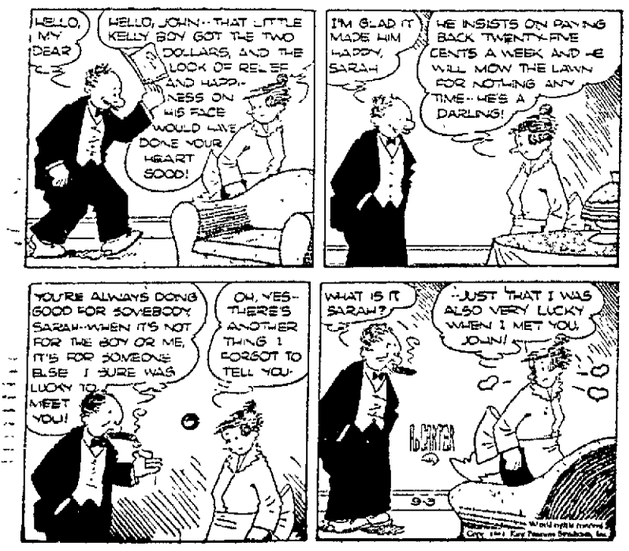
JUST KIDS — By Ad Carter



HELLO, MY DEAR CLEM
HELLO, JOHN--THAT LITTLE KELLY BOY GOT THE TWO DOLLARS, AND THE LOOK OF RELIEF AND HAPPINESS ON HIS FACE WOULD HAVE DONE YOUR HEART GOOD!
I'M GLAD IT MADE HIM HAPPY, SARAH
HE INSISTS ON PAYING BACK TWENTY-FIVE CENTS A WEEK AND HE WILL MOW THE LAWN FOR NOTHING ANY TIME--HE'S A DARLING!
YOU'RE ALWAYS DOING GOOD FOR SOMEBODY SARAH--WHEN IT'S NOT FOR THE BOY OR ME, IT'S FOR SOMEONE ELSE I SURE WAS LUCKY TO MEET YOU!
OH, YES--THERE'S ANOTHER THING I FORGOT TO TELL YOU-
WHAT IS IT SARAH?
JUST THAT I WAS ALSO VERY LUCKY WHEN I MET YOU, JOHN!

I'LL SAY WE GOT THOSE CROOKS, DUNN AND BLACK, CONVICTED BY THEIR OWN WORDS, COLONEL!
THOSE DETECTIVES WERE GOOD! FIRST THEY GOT THIS "GO-BETWEEN" TO CONFESS — HE WAS JUST A CHEAP LITTLE HEEL, NAMED SLADE —
THAT'S FINE, APPLEBY, THEY CERTAINLY CAUSED ME A LOT OF WASTED EFFORT
—THEN THEY RIGGED UP A RECORDING DICTOGRAPH IN THIS OFFICE OF SLADES, AND WHEN DUNN AND BLACK CAME IN LATER AND LIT INTO SLADE ABOUT NOT GETTING THE OPTION, WE GOT A SWELL RECORD, WHICH IS DEAD CERTAIN TO CONVICT THEM!
OH, GOOD MORNING. YES, THE COLONEL IS IN. WON'T YOU SIT DOWN? HE'LL BE AT LEISURE SHORTLY
THE ODD YOUNG MAN OF THE DAY BEFORE WAS BACK AGAIN!
THANK YOU. YES, I'LL WAIT

DOG DIES IN LINE OF DUTY

SYRACUSE, N Y —(U P.)—A yellow mongrel dog is dead after five years of warning motorists of approaching trains at a crossing.

The dog began his vigil after making friends with the regular watchman Long before the crossing signal sounded, the animal could hear an approaching train Immediately the animal would run into the highway and herd motorists and pedestrians back from the tracks

But the dog was killed by an automobile when it ran into the road to chase another dog.

SEVERAL STOCKS GAIN AS MARKET TENDS TO DRIFT

Sentiment Is Mildly Bullish Despite Report Year's Earnings Decline.

NEW YORK—(AP)—A fair number of stocks achieved modest new gains today but the market as a whole was inclined to drift in a narrowly mixed range.

After some uneven shifting of prices at the opening, motors, merchandising shares and a few amusements and shipbuilding issues shaded toward improvement.

Sentiment in Wall Street boardrooms remained conservatively bulish on the market's recent performances but bidders still leaned toward caution.

Analysts found little to cheer about in a New York Federal Reserve bank survey which indicated a general decline in corporate earnings between the first and second quarters this year despite record industrial production.

Returns of 167 largest concerns disclosed a 6 per cent decline in profits, attributed to higher labor and material costs and increased provision for taxes.

PLANS SUPPLY

OPM Announces Program To Provide Materials For Roads.

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The OPM'S priorities division today announced a broad program to provide materials needed for the construction of strategic roads in the United States, the inter-American highway and two highways in Panama.

Classes of roads to be given priority ratings include access roads to military, naval or defense manufacturing establishments. Ratings also will be given to roads to be constructed by the government and for work on national park and forest projects.

CALLS REVENUE BILL 'VICIOUS'

Sen. La Follette Dubs Measure Assault on Plain Taxpayer, Demands Rejection.

exemptions from $2,000 to $1,500 for married persons and from $800 to $750 for single individuals. The majority committee report today said the lowered exemptions would require 4,911,000 additional persons to file income tax returns, and would increase the number of actual income tax payers by 2,256,000.

In his report, LaFollette said the pending bill "is inadequate, inequitable and in my opinion indefensible."

"It conforms to no standards of justice or fairness," he continued. "It 'soaks' the poor while confirming, protecting and entrenching the corporate wealth and power engendered by the defense program.

"It levies the major share of costs of 'all-out' defense on those who have the least property to protect and those who have the least ability to pay."

Senator Connally (D-Tex) filed a minority report in opposition to a committee-approved amendment forbidding husbands and wives in the eight community property states — Louisiana, Texas, New Mexico, Arizona, California, Idaho, Nevada and Washington — from dividing income and thereby securing lower totals on their tax bills.

Connally said the provision might cause indefinite delay in enactment of the revenue measure, and declared a fight over the proposal might cc t the treasury more money than it would gain. Delay in enacting the new revenue bill is preventing the collection of various excise taxes estimated to yield more than $2,000,000 daily. These levies are to go into effect at once when the bill becomes law.

Criticism of the new tax measure also came from Senators Bailey (D-NC) and Walsh (D-Mass), but, like Clark, they said they would vote for it in the absence of something better.

DEFENSE GIVEN FULL PRIORITY

Consumers Warned To Expect Pinch as Board Issues 'First Call' Order.

still more money would be expended for defense orders—the program already tops $50,000,000,000—with the objective of producing still more supplies and of getting two and three shifts to work in the plants.

What was inferential in Mr. Roosevelt's statement, the new super-board stated in so many words.

To accomplish this purpose, the board said a code of regulations would be worked out with the idea of making the most effective use of available raw materials and production facilities for military and essential civilian needs.

There was no immediate indication what industries would be hit by the projected suspension of non-essential production.

The board also promised action to obtain vital materials which it said were being hoarded by certain industries and traders. It likewise served notice that it would not tolerate speculation in such necessary supplies.

Piqua Lady Is Well Pleased Over The Relief Rumasol Has Given Her

Suffered several years with muscular and articular Rheumatism. Thanks Rumasol for giving her wonderful relief.

Mrs. John Hubley of 508 Cleveland street, Piqua, Ohio, states: "I have tried several remedies but got no results. My ankles were swollen so bad I couldn't walk. My feet and hands would have severe pains shoot through them till I could hardly stand it. My arms, fingers, and joints were also swollen terribly. After taking Rumasol all the swelling and aches and pains have been relieved. I also was constipated and was bothered with piles for ten years, this making me very nervous. Now after taking Rumasol, my stomach and nerves are settled and the rest of my above troubles are all gone now. I will gladly praise Rumasol to all my friends and hope that anyone suffering with any rheumatic aches, for them to get Rumasol.
